INSIDE THIS WEEK

p40

I have to admit I'm a bit jealous this week. My fiancé Tom had a man make-over and the response has been amazing. I sent him to my hairdresser mate, Remi, and he had his long, curly hair converted to a trendy short back and sides - 'from hippie to hipster' as one Instagram commentator put it. Yep, Remi posted before and after pics to his social media sites and complete strangers began weighing in on how hot Tom's new look was. (Back off, John, I know your Twitter handle!) Tom now checks back every night to inform me how many new likes he's got. Remi - you've created a monster! Speaking of makeovers, there are a few celebs who should've left well enough alone. Check out the newly nipped and tucked stars on p22. Enjoy the issue!

Carrying a girl's dog for her? Such a boyfriend thing to do - just saying!

MIXED MESSAGES

'These are two people who revel in each other's company,' says Katia Loisel of Brad and Jen's red carpet flirt-fests. Their behaviour leaving a New York hotel told a different tale, with the pair making a conscious effort to walk separately. Although, Brad carrying Jen's dog suggested otherwise!

A REBOUND Romance?

HOTEL MEETINGS AND
RED CARPET FLIRT-FESTS
- HAS BRADLEY COOPER
ALREADY MOVED
ON FROM SUKI?

What went wrong with Suki?

While promoting their latest movie Serena on March 21, Bradley Cooper and Jennifer Lawrence made no secret about how much they love working together. The chemistry has always been palpable between the pair, who have co-starred in four different movies in four years – but until now their romance has only been on screen. ‘No sex!’ Jen recently joked when quizzed about their relationship.

But something seems to have changed between the pair – and it could have a lot to do with the fact that they’re now both single! Friends confirm Brad recently broke off his two-year romance with Suki Waterhouse, 23, because she was reluctant to settle down. ‘They remain friends but they both want different things right now.’

And it appears Jen is also not currently spoken for! She hasn’t been seen with Brit rocker Chris Martin since Harry Styles’s 21st birthday party in LA almost two months ago.

‘I’ve sort of hit the jackpot being able to work with Jennifer Lawrence... It’s a very thrilling thing to be a part of,’ Bradley gushes. ‘I respect her so much as a professional, as an actor, and I think she’s the best there is.’

The feeling is obviously mutual. ‘Any male role is going to make me think of Bradley because in my opinion, he’s the best, and I love working with him,’ says Jen, who first met him while they were casting Serena in 2011.

It doesn’t hurt that Brad, 40, and Jen, 24, have been spending plenty of time together! Dressed in sunglasses and matching beanies, the pair were careful not to walk next to each other as they left the same New York hotel on March 22. However, Brad gave the game away when fans noticed he was carrying Jen’s dog, Pippa!

Could this be the start of a beautiful romance? Body language expert Katia Loisel from katialoiselbodylanguage.expert says their chemistry is evident. ‘Their non-verbal communication indicates a close emotional bond,’ she says, adding that their flirty banter ‘is often seen in the very early stages of attraction as a way to defuse sexual tension’.

Despite their 16-year-age gap, Jen could be the perfect girl for Brad, who says his ‘next big step’ is to have kids. While friends say Suki wasn’t ready for motherhood, babies are apparently very much a part of Jen’s plans.

Another thing they have in common? They both love their food. Jen admits she and Brad ‘never’ disagree about where to go for dinner. ‘We’re both two of the biggest eaters in Hollywood,’ she jokes.

Sounds like it may only be a matter of time before the pair are spotted on an official date! ●

HARD AT WORK

Bradley has four projects coming out in 2015...

PARTYING

...while Suki has been living it up with pal Cara D

They were only recently seen together at the Oscars in February, where Bradley was nominated for his work in American Sniper. And while friends say he and Suki still strongly care for one another, few are surprised that the pair have gone their separate ways after two years of dating. With a string of upcoming movie roles including Insurgent and a new comedy The Bad Batch, Suki isn’t ready to settle down. ‘She’s so young and wants to concentrate on her acting career before becoming a mum,’ a friend explains. And as one of London’s coolest It girls – along with pals like Cara Delevingne and Georgia May Jagger – Suki’s also not ready to leave the British party scene behind. ‘I’m not one of those girls who goes on about their boyfriends,’ she recently admitted to UK Elle.

CO-STAR CHEMISTRY

THREE FILMS TOGETHER – THEY’RE A MATCH MADE IN HEAVEN!

SILVER LININGS PLAYBOOK

‘During rehearsals Bradley was brilliant,’ Jen says of their dancing scenes in the 2012 film that won her an Oscar. ‘We get on really well. Professionally it is like finding your co-star soulmate.’

AMERICAN HUSTLE

He plays an FBI agent; she plays a conman’s annoying wife. ‘Honestly, it’s just happenstance,’ Brad says of why he and Jen have landed so many roles together – including 2013’s Oscar-nominated comedy-drama American Hustle.

SERENA

Brad and Jen’s latest film together, in which they play a married couple, is also their first! The pair began casting sessions back in 2011. ‘She is a wonderful, wonderful asset,’ Brad gushes.

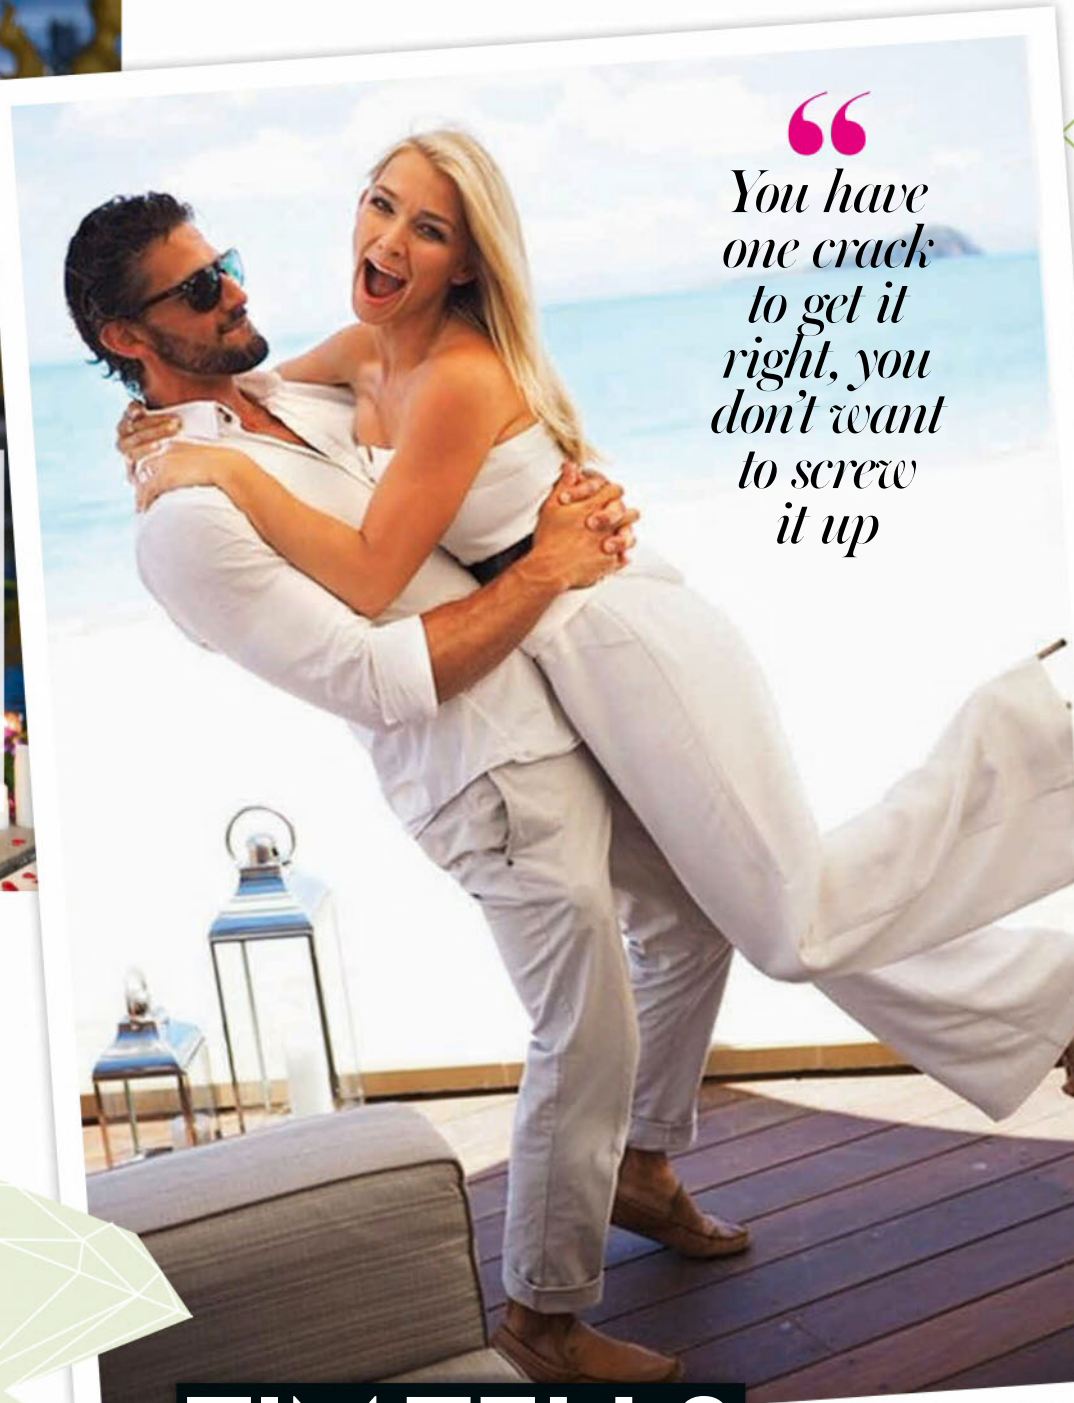

WHERE IT ALL BEGAN

We first met Tim in the inaugural season of The Bachelor Australia in 2013. From 25 hopefuls, he couldn't look past Anna, presenting her with a diamond promise ring while in Thailand.

As the sun set in Bali, Anna Heinrich pulled her beau of 16 months Tim Robards in close, their chemistry clear for all to see. The smitten pair were in the exotic location celebrating Tim's sister Angela's nuptials with a family holiday, but a wedding of their own is clearly not far off. Particularly with the criminal lawyer admitting she is excited about the idea of walking down the aisle. 'I can see myself with him forever,' Anna tells OK!

The pair have been enjoying the luxurious trappings of their holiday after living in the South African jungle during their time on I'm A Celebrity... Get Me Out Of Here! But while the couple – and Anna in particular – may have endured tough conditions, Tim admits his stint on the show cemented the fact that Anna was the girl for him.

TO PUT A RING ON IT, BUT TIM'S
WAITING FOR THE PERFECT MOMENT

'We definitely grew closer together,' he reveals to OK!. 'Those experiences are priceless.'

With Tim and Anna living out their romance in the public eye after meeting on season one of The Bachelor Australia, whispers of marriage have long surrounded the photogenic pair.

But while he hasn't put a ring on it yet, Tim assures OK! he is getting closer. However, the former Bachelor wisely decided a proposal during a family holiday might not be quite as special with both sets of parents present. 'I don't know... I like to be spontaneous and that's almost a bit too cliché,' he laughs.

Plus, the 32-year-old had already been given strict instructions from Anna, 28, about where not to propose. 'Anna said do not propose in the jungle!' Tim laughs.

But the gorgeous blonde says she had good reason to squash that idea. 'I think that would have been the most horrible proposal ever!' she laughs. 'I don't think I would've enjoyed it.'

While Tim is keeping quiet about the location of where he will pop the question, he has admitted that he feels pressure to pick the right engagement ring, saying, 'You have one crack to get it right, you don't want to screw it up.'

But if he does have any trouble, there are plenty of eager helpers on stand-by.

'I might have to consult the sisters,' he says of Anna's siblings, Andrea and Charlotte.

And while Anna understands Australia is waiting for Tim to get down on one knee, she won't be putting any pressure on her man. 'I want him to do it in his own time,' she smiles. ●

TIME TO CHILL

Since their stint in the jungle, the couple have enjoyed back-to-back holidays in the Blue Mountains and then Bali with both their families. And while it looks like they've had a blast, Anna's looking forward to some quiet time. 'My favourite thing now is just to get home and do nothing,' she says.

STORM & RONAN... WEDDING TIME

Opening up about his wedding plans earlier this year, Ronan Keating confessed that he was getting ready to pop the question to long-time girlfriend Storm Uechtritz. 'Of course, I'd have to ask her,' he admitted. 'There are so many things that have to happen.' Until now, one of those things has been Ronan's divorce from ex-wife Yvonne, which was finalised on March 19. 'It's a matter of public record now,' a pal reveals. 'They are ready to move on with their lives.' So could now be the time? Showing she's more in love than ever, 34-year-old Storm paid a sweet Instagram tribute to the X Factor hunk when he celebrated his 38th birthday earlier this month, writing, 'Your love gives me butterflies and you make me so happy, thank you.' Aww, cute!

Leaving Anna in the jungle was 'pretty bloody hard,' Tim says

TOO SENSITIVE FOR FAME?

Having shied away from fame for more than a year and endured fat shaming on Twitter, Rob has admitted he's a gentle soul and maybe not cut out for the spotlight like his attention-grabbing sisters. 'I'm a Pisces - emotional,' he says.

ROB SNAPS KIM IS EVIL!

IS THE TROUBLED
KARDASHIAN'S
LATEST OUTBURST
A DESPERATE
CRY FOR HELP?

'Rob has a funny sense of humour,' says a pal, although we're not sure Kim will find this comparison amusing

Rob has a funny sense of humour,' says a pal, although we're not sure Kim will find this comparison amusing

On March 23, Rob posted a shocking image to his 2.7 million Instagram followers of a blood-splattered Rosamund Pike as the psychotic, manipulative, man-eating Amy Dunne in Gone Girl, adding the callous caption, 'This is my sister Kim, the bitch from Gone Girl.'

As public disses go, they don't come much harsher or nastier than that. Unsurprisingly, the vitriolic post generated a storm of publicity and shone a harsh light on Rob's continually fraught relationship with his family.

'Over the last year, Rob has become very introverted and has a kind of social anxiety,' says a concerned Khloé, 30. 'He's definitely not at his happiest place.' Optimistically, she adds, 'I know he can get to that happy place.'

Until Rob's savage post, it had seemed as if Rob was fulfilling Khloé's hopes for him, tentatively moving towards a healthier and happier place personally. Rob began posting upbeat messages to Instagram about his sock line Arthur George, and celebrated the brand branching out into loungewear.

Last August, it even seemed as if his frosty relationship with Kim, 34, was healing, after he'd abruptly bailed on her May 2014 wedding to Kanye West. Gushing over his niece North via Twitter, Rob wrote, 'She's soooooo pretty, LOVE HERR,' to which Kim replied, 'She loves her uncle Robby.'

The apparent warmth between Kim and Rob at this point was in contrast to their often difficult relationship in which Kim has been less than sympathetic or supportive of Rob. 'Kim brings out my negative energy,' Rob – who's now opted out of appearing in KUWTK – has previously admitted.

'Kim was pissed that Rob hadn't made an effort to drop any weight over the past few months,' a mole revealed not long after he skipped out on Kim's Florence nuptials. 'Rob basically thinks Kim cares about him only for his appearance and he said he'd "make life easier" for her and just leave.'

Yet things took a dramatic turn for the worse in the wake of Rob's 28th birthday on March 17. A post on Khloé's Instagram feed suggested that Rob was spending his birthday quietly with her and Kourtney, and his nieces Penelope and North. Mumager Kris Jenner, 59, was noticeably absent from the low-key celebrations, and even posted gushing tweets promoting Kendall and Kylie's new mobile phone game BEFORE she eventually wished her only biological son a happy birthday. When she did eventually tweet her birthday greetings, Kris's message made reference to Rob's troubles. 'You have experienced

HE'S DEFINITELY NOT AT HIS HAPPIEST PLACE

For the past year, Rob, the 'forgotten' Kardashian has lived the life of a virtual recluse. The troubled star has only been photographed in public twice – in July and December 2014 – as he battles his weight woes and alleged substance abuse issues. Instead, Rob has hidden behind the walls of his supportive older sister Khloé's Calabasas compound. His increasingly lonely life plays out in stark contrast to his publicity queen sisters.

But while Rob, 28, had hinted that he was on the mend when he posted a Harry Potter

ROB'S DESCENT INTO DARKNESS

2003 When Robert Kardashian Senior died from oesophageal cancer just eight weeks after his diagnosis, teenaged Rob was heartbroken.

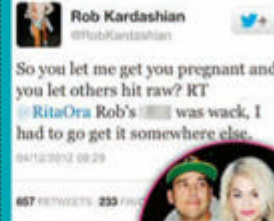

2003 'He never really got over his dad's death,' says a friend, who reveals the reality star took things much harder than his siblings.

2009 Rob's two-year relationship with Adrienne Bailon fell apart. 'It's common knowledge that he cheated on me,' Adrienne says.

2010 In a KUWTK ep titled Blame It on the Alcohol, Rob and Scott Disick get into a drunken brawl in Vegas, with Rob later calling Scott 'an alcoholic'.

2012 Rob took his split with girlfriend Rita Ora badly. 'She cheated on me with nearly 20 dudes while we were together,' he blasted on Twitter.

2012 During a family therapy session filmed for KUWTK, Rob left the room in tears after admitting his family made him feel like a 'loser.'

2013 Rob was upset after his binge eating was uncovered by Kim. 'I'm 50 pounds overweight – it's embarrassing to the family,' he lamented.

2014 Rob was snapped at LAX after pulling out of Kim's Florence nuptials. She later put it down to him being embarrassed by his weight.

2014 Shocking pictures emerge of an overweight Rob allegedly smoking marijuana with a friend, and drinking a mix of cough syrup and soda.

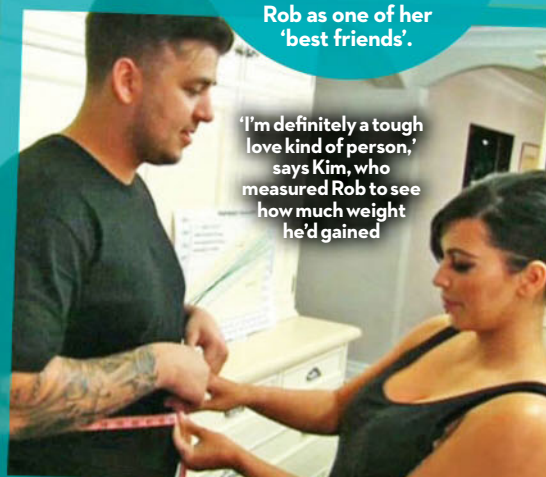

2015 Rob celebrated his 28th birthday on March 17 in underwhelming fashion, spending the day with Khloé, Kourtney, Penelope and North.

ROLLER-COASTER RELATIONSHIP

Though the brother and sister haven't been photographed together in public since October 2013, Kim once described Rob as one of her 'best friends'.

'I'm definitely a tough love kind of person,' says Kim, who measured Rob to see how much weight he'd gained great sadness, overcome adversity and also enjoyed success beyond measure, the mumager wrote. 'The best is yet to come.'

But Rob wasn't impressed. 'Kris actually offended him by posting on social media for his birthday because they do not have a good relationship at this time, and she was not there to celebrate his birthday with him,' says a family friend, adding, 'It really just pissed him off, if anything. It was just really all for show.'

The fact that he doesn't appear in Kim's wildly successful mobile phone game app and that Kris often refers to Scott and Kanye as her 'sons' must also cut Rob deeply. 'When there's a business opportunity, all my mum cares about is the girls,' Rob has lamented in the past. 'They all put this cloud on me like I'm a loser.'

The less than effusive birthday wishes from some of his family seemed to be the last straw for Rob, who posted the offensive Gone Girl snap shortly afterwards. 'Everyone is worried,' a family friend reveals. 'Things have gotten so bad. Khloé wants him to get help.'

'He hates being big, but he gained all that weight from being depressed,' says a mole, who adds that Rob wants to lose about 22kg but

'isn't trying to do anything about it.'

It comes as no surprise then that the sensitive star has isolated himself from almost the entire family. 'The only family members that Rob can really tolerate now are Khloé and Kourtney because they keep it real to him,' explains a pal.

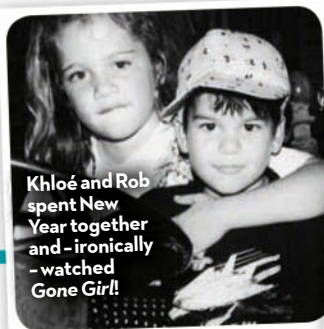

It seems this latest cold shoulder from his ambitious – and insensitive – mother and sister could estrange Rob from the clan even further. 'Rob is really trying to decide if he even wants to be a part of this empire,' reveals a pal. 'He's only in it for the money and has been over the "fame thing" for a while.'

KHLOÉ'S HIS ONLY FRIEND

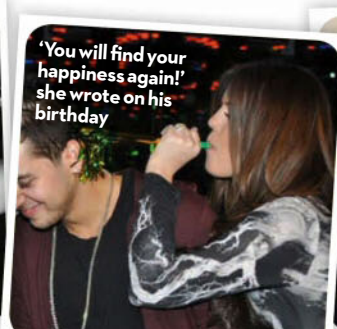

Troubled Rob moved into Khloé's Calabasas home midway through 2014 and has taken refuge there ever since. 'Never will I meet another man as great as you!' Khloé tweeted on his birthday. While Kris maintains 'I cry myself to sleep every night' worrying about Rob, Khloé's still his most vocal advocate. 'It's important for him to know he always has people to lean on,' KoKo says. 'I will always be his number one supporter.'

Khloé and Rob spent New Year together and – ironically – watched Gone Girl!

'You will find your happiness again!' she wrote on his birthday

Khloé calls Rob 'My ace from day 1'

Ryan
admits

IT'S COMP

Notoriously guarded about their personal lives, Eva Mendes and Ryan Gosling rarely ever talk about their relationship. So in those occasional moments when they do speak out, you might expect they'd be gushing about their lives together with their new baby.

But that wasn't exactly the case when Ryan spoke on March 13 at the SXSW Film Festival. 'I have complicated, powerful female characters in my life, and that's growing,' he told reporters.

While they've been together for three years, Ryan remains reluctant to publicly acknowledge his relationship with Eva, who stars in his directorial debut Lost River. 'I really like working with my friends; I love all of these people,' was all he would say, before adding, 'I have a baby with one of them.'

And the pair have only been spied out together twice since the birth of Esmeralda six months ago – with Eva equally reluctant to sing Ryan's praises.

Opening up about motherhood, the 41-year-old actress admits that it is her mum she's been reaching out to since the arrival of her daughter. 'Now I understand so much, my mother's never gotten more "I love you so much, mummy" texts, I mean, randomly,' says the star.

TRACKY PANT GATE

After causing a furore with her trackpants comment, Eva proved it was all a joke by instagramming a pair of her favourite trackies. Ryan also took to Twitter to hose down the controversy, 'Obviously sweatpants thing was a joke. Wearing them now. That's right, tweeting in sweatpants. Rats! Said too much! You win again Twitter.'

Eva retracted her comment about sweatpants and turned on orange Crocs instead...

Dear favorite pair of sweatpants. I was just kidding when I said you're the #1 cause of divorce. Everyone knows that orange crocs are the #1 cause of divorce. Either way it was a bad joke and feel terrible if you or anyone thought I was serious. Thanks for understanding sweatpants. Sorry orange crocs.

AS THE HOLLYWOOD COUPLE BICKER ABOUT PARENTING ISSUES, COULD THEIR RELATIONSHIP BE IN TROUBLE?

But while she's more than happy to wax lyrical about her baby girl, Eva's far less forthcoming about Ryan. Although she did admit she won't let him see her in sweatpants. 'Ladies, number one cause of divorce in America? Sweatpants,' Eva claimed. 'No. Can't do that.'

Worse still, the pair bicker over parenting. While Eva wants to protect Esme from the spotlight, she feels that Ryan is going to extreme lengths to keep their baby under wraps.

'He insists Eva hire security, including a diversion vehicle, whenever she ventures out with Esme,' a friend explains.

It's the last thing the couple need, after their recent time apart, with 34-year-old Ryan spending time in Atlanta filming The Nice Guys. Meanwhile Eva's been working to promote her Eva Mendes Collection fashion range, and her line of bridesmaid dresses.

Here's hoping Ryan and Eva will also make time to get their relationship back on track! ●

RYAN THE ROMANTIC

Eva Mendes couldn't wipe the smile off her face after Ryan Gosling threw her a party at a roller rink for her 41st birthday, in an attempt to inject some fun back into their relationship. 'She and Ryan skated with their arms linked and she was skating backwards and showing off her skills. They had the best time and had a perfect night doing something that they love,' says a pal. Eva walked out with her hands full of flowers, gift bags and presents.

Miley told the crowd she was 'high as f---' during her performance

MILEY: HIGH & HEARTBROKEN!

It was a sadder and wiser Patrick Schwarzenegger who emerged in Malibu, days after he was snapped canoodling with two girls (one being his ex, Taylor Burns) in Cabo.

But while 21-year-old Patrick was keeping his head down, his girlfriend Miley was doing what she does best - partying! Looking slightly worse for wear at the SXSW Music Festival on March 19, Miley took to the stage to announce, 'This is Texas. I don't know how f---ing high you are, but we're high as f--- up here.' But behind the smiles, friends say the 22-year-old singer is devastated. 'She's totally destroyed by this,' a pal says. 'Boys with girlfriends don't do body shots off other women.'

COUPLE TIME

'There's no mystery anymore,' says Lara of her marriage to Sam and impending arrival. And she also seemed to enjoy not having to hide, spending some child-free time with her man while running errands together in LA.

LARA & SAM'S

Smiling sweetly as she reached out for her husband's hand, Lara Bingle looked perfectly relaxed as she and Sam Worthington strolled into popular LA eatery Le Pain Quotidien on March 17, to enjoy one of their last lunch dates before being joined by Baby Bingle.

First-time mum Lara, 27 – who is reportedly expecting a boy – has also been spotted at high-end kids' boutique Bel Bambini in West Hollywood shopping for baby clothes.

A suspected false alarm and dash to the hospital is thought to have prompted some local news sites to run stories that the model had gone into labour last Monday. These premature reports were taken down some hours later, but they sparked speculation that the arrival of Lara's bub was imminent.

And while the couple seemed happy as they enjoyed the last ebbs of calm before the storm of welcoming their baby, it looks like things could get a lot more complicated, very soon!

Though having a base in LA means the couple are close to Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, which has been the maternity ward of choice for stars such as Jessica Simpson, Victoria Beckham and Kourtney Kardashian, it seems the notoriously low-key couple may have their work cut out keeping the birth completely private. 'I'm protective of Lara,' Sam admits. 'All we want is a little space for ourselves.'

But Sam, who reveals he is 'shy and reserved,' won't necessarily have the delivery room scenario he no doubt hopes for. Not only will Lara's mum, Sharon, be present – she posted an Instagram snap from LA on March 23 – his own parents, Ronald and Jeanne, may well make an appearance after being spotted out for lunch with the

LA DELIV

FAMILY TIME

Soon-to-be grandparents Ronald and Jeanne Worthington made sure they snuck in some time with Sam and Lara before the bub arrived. The four caught up at Nobu sushi restaurant at Malibu Beach for a casual lunch to chat about the impending arrival. Lara's mum Sharon is also thrilled at the idea of being Nana Bingle! 'I am ready to be a nan,' she says.

Lara enjoyed a pre-baby catch-up with her mum, Sharon, and in-laws, Ronald and Jeanne (above) couple in LA last month.

Lara's eager mum is already warning her daughter of the amount of cuddles she wants with her grandchild. 'I'm sure Lara won't be able to keep me away, especially in the beginning,' says Sharon.

And while having family around is certainly a blessing, with the couple at the mercy of Sam's filming schedule, they are no doubt desperate to spend time as a trio once the baby arrives.

'I want to have a base and home, but because of the nature of the job I'm always travelling,' Sam confesses. In fact, the Avatar actor is fully aware that he may have to leave LA at the drop of a hat, admitting his phone could ring any minute to call him on set to film the next Avatar movie. 'I've a rough idea when we're meant to start, but that's been shifting for the last four years,' he says. 'Jim's [James Cameron] in no hurry. No-one tells him that he has to go and do it. He's the boss and when the boss says, "Come!" I'll come and jump. That's it.'

Regardless, Lara will undoubtedly enjoy the first few days with her newborn, something her mum Sharon confirms: 'I think she will make a great mum.' And while Sharon will be a hands-on granny while she can, it won't be long before Lara follows Sam as he embarks on his next role.

Luckily, being on the move with a baby doesn't faze Lara, who says happiness is where her bub and man are. 'Settling [down] doesn't mean being in one place,' she says. 'For me, it's about being settled in yourself. I like travelling and I like the life [we] have.' ●

'We're very good friends,' Miranda says, so were the couple friends with benefits after the Vanity Fair Oscars party?

CRYPTIC CLUES

Was this motivational post about love Miranda's way of telling the world she feels good about rekindling the flame with Orlando?

Miranda & Orlando

SECRET HOOK-UPS!

THE FRIENDLIEST EXES IN HOLLYWOOD REKINDLE THEIR STEAMY ROMANCE

There's a deep love between us,' Orlando Bloom says about his feelings for ex-wife Miranda Kerr. 'We both love and care about each other and genuinely want each other to be happy.'

Indeed, the pair have made an effort to play happy families publicly for their four-year-old son, Flynn, since their split in 2013. But now it appears Orly and Miranda are having some fun of their own behind closed doors!

Friends close to the duo have let slip that these former lovers are having secret hook-ups. 'The booty calls have been going on for months,' a pal says.

Miranda, 31, has never hidden the fact that she continued to have strong feelings for the 38-year-old actor after they split up.

'Orlando will always be my family,' she says. 'We get on so well. We hang out a lot. We're a team, and we really work on that because Flynn is our priority.'

The A-list exes were even spotted leaving the Vanity Fair Oscars party together on February 22, but don't get too excited – it seems they aren't looking to officially get back together anytime soon.

'[They're] enjoying hooking up whenever the mood and opportunity strike,' a friend explains.

'We're going to turn this into a wedding party!' James joked once the happy news was revealed

Mila confirms YES, I'M MARRIED!

Mila Kunis – or is it Mila Kutcher? – has confirmed she and Ashton, 37, have tied the knot! In an interview on The Late Late Show, host James Corden asked about the covert nuptials. 'Did you get married?' he probed. 'Maybe,' Mila, 31, replied coyly, prompting James to say, 'Either you're married or you're not!' He then looked at her ring finger and exclaimed, 'They are married!'

Zayn's WRONG DIRECTION

'Don't worry guys, Zayn is going to be OK very soon,' were the calming words from Zayn Malik's sister, Safaa. But the absence of the One Direction member from the band's Asian shows is raising eyebrows about the real reason behind the 22-year-old's disappearance.

It's been a tough week for Zayn, who left the tour due to 'stress' shortly after being spotted in Thailand getting cosy with a cute blonde who wasn't his fiancée, Little Mix singer Perrie Edwards, 21. He was partying with 19-year-old Lauren Richardson, who revealed all to friends about the night she shared with the singer.

'She said she'd been back to where they were staying,' Lauren's pal Sean Dolan says. 'At the villa, they had a few drinks and threw a party... She said she had given Zayn her number but didn't expect to hear from him.'

A Blind Gossip item controversially claims a singer - rumoured to be Zayn - has long been playing up behind his lady's back!

However, Zayn has denied he is cheating on his fiancée.

Bandmate Harry Styles is particularly concerned with Zayn's wild partying.

'It has caused real disagreements.

Zayn and Harry [have] become different people,' a friend says.

ID TO SPLIT?

Zayn is thought to be talking to his managers about getting out of his contract. 'At the moment he's convinced he wants out,' a friend says.

Fans hope Zayn will rejoin his bandmates on tour soon

NAOMI'S DRUG TRAGEDY

While she seems poised and unflappable on the red carpet, a young Naomi Watts was deeply affected by her dad Peter's death when she was just seven. Her mum Myfanwy Edwards reveals, 'The truth is he died of a heroin overdose. It left scars.' But she adds that Naomi's partner Liev Schreiber has helped heal the star. 'He's definitely a strong father-figure for her,' she says.

Russell 'I WANT DANIELLE BACK!'

Russell Crowe has shown his warm and fuzzy side - opening up about his ex-wife, Danielle Spencer. 'I've loved Danielle since 1989 - that's never going to change,' he says. 'I stare at her and go, "How did this fail?" I still can't work it out, because my feelings for her have never changed.' The dad-of-two, 50, isn't ruling out a reconciliation, smiling, 'Once I commit to something, I stick with it, so you never know...'

NEW NIP TUCK

More and more stars are turning to plastic surgery than ever before – just ask Sharon Osbourne, who admits she was every cosmetic surgeon's 'perfect' customer. 'You start doing it, then you come round from the operation and think, "OK, that was pretty easy,"' she says of her obsession. But how far is too far? OK! investigates.

RENÉE ZELLWEGER

'People don't know me in my 40s,' says the actress, 45, responding to comments about her changing looks. But Dr Joseph Hkeik, Director of All Saints Cosmedical Clinic, thinks she may have gone under the knife. 'Renée has had facial surgery,' he says, adding, 'She has had upper blepharoplasty to remove the excess upper eyelid skin.'

SARAH JESSICA PARKER

'I have lines,' says the 50-year-old, denying she's had a nose job, boob job and Botox. 'I want to age with dignity.'

JENNIFER LOPEZ

The fresh-faced 45-year-old denies she's had work done. Plastic surgery rumours surfaced after Jen arrived at an American Idol party looking noticeably different. 'JLo has changed her make-up style to give her more of a "geisha" look,' says Dr Hkeik. 'Her skin looks tight and flawless. It is possible that she might have had anti-wrinkle injections.'

THE KNIFE

CHLOE SIMS

The Only Way is Essex star spent $62,000 on surgery after she was bullied online, but the results made her more insecure. 'I got ridiculed every day,' confesses Chloe, 32. 'It is clear that Chloe has had cheek augmentation,' Dr Hkeik says. 'Her lips also seem larger, most likely through filler.'

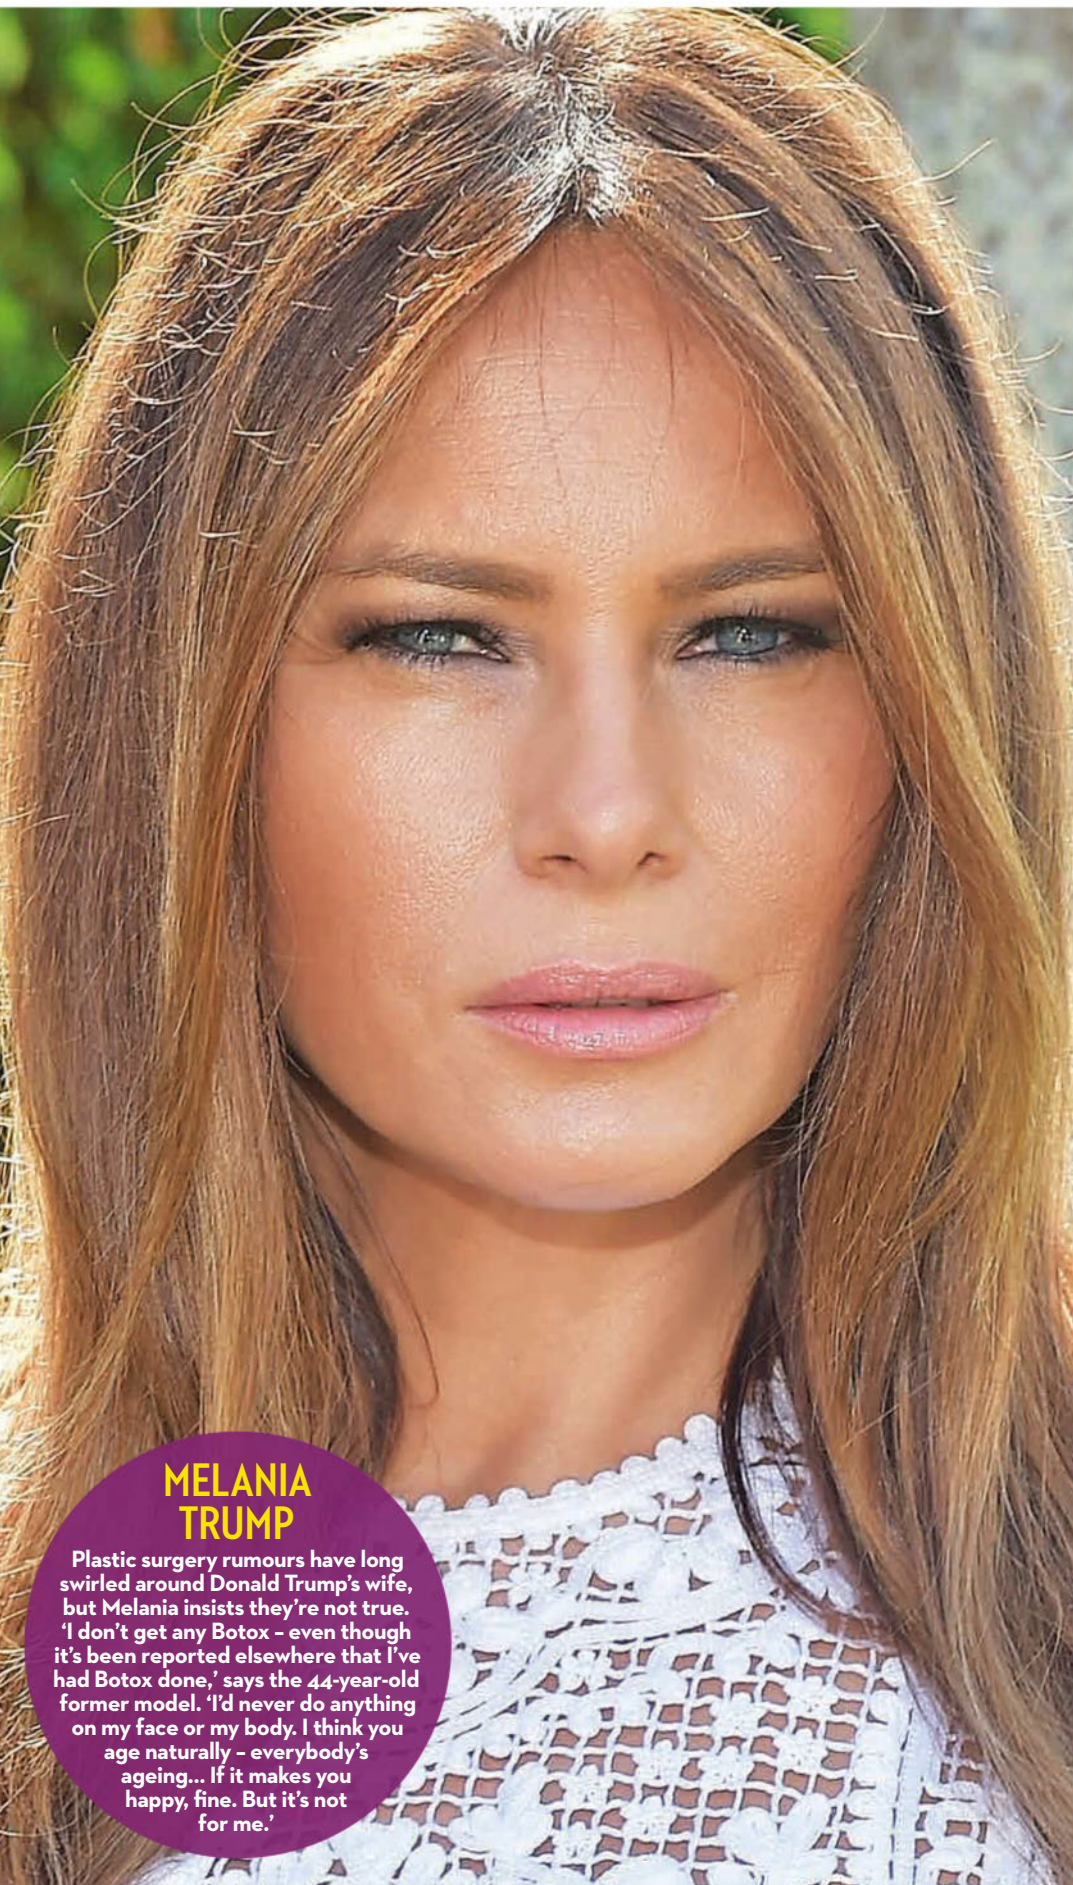

VICTORIA BECKHAM

Posh famously confessed she'd had her DD implants removed, admitting, 'I don't have them anymore.' But the 40-year-old looked bustier than usual at a recent London event! Dr Hkeik believes she may also have had work done on her face. 'Posh's upper lip seems slightly larger, giving her a balanced look to her lips,' he says.

SHARON OSBOURNE

'There's not much I haven't had tweaked, stretched, peeled, lasered, veneered, enhanced or removed,' the 62-year-old admits, calling Botox 'one of the best things to be created in plastic surgery'. Dr Hkeik believes she has 'dabbled' in fillers. 'She has also had some filler in her cheeks, a procedure she is not foreign to.'

MELANIA TRUMP

Plastic surgery rumours have long swirled around Donald Trump's wife, but Melania insists they're not true. 'I don't get any Botox - even though it's been reported elsewhere that I've had Botox done,' says the 44-year-old former model. 'I'd never do anything on my face or my body. I think you age naturally - everybody's ageing... If it makes you happy, fine. But it's not for me.'

BILLIE PIPER

The 32-year-old's plump pout has been the subject of collagen rumours for years. While her rep insists, 'She has never had surgery,' fans of the Brit star appear to think otherwise. 'Her face has changed shape,' speculated one.

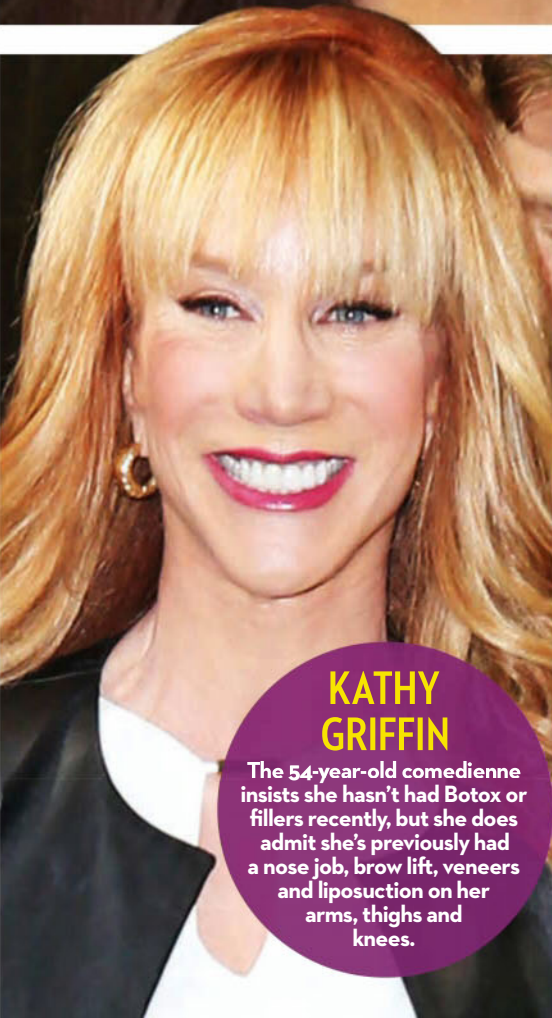

SCHEANA MARIE

The 29-year-old Vanderpump Rules star has denied plastic surgery rumours - because she doesn't believe Botox counts! 'That's not even CLOSE to plastic surgery!!' she recently told a Twitter fan.

BETHENNY FRANKEL

The RHONYC star has spoken about her boob jobs, but is cagey about Botox rumours. 'I am not saying I wouldn't do Botox, but I am not doing Botox on the regular,' the 44-year-old says. Plastic surgeon Dr David Shafer thinks she 'may have had Botox or chemical peels or laser.'

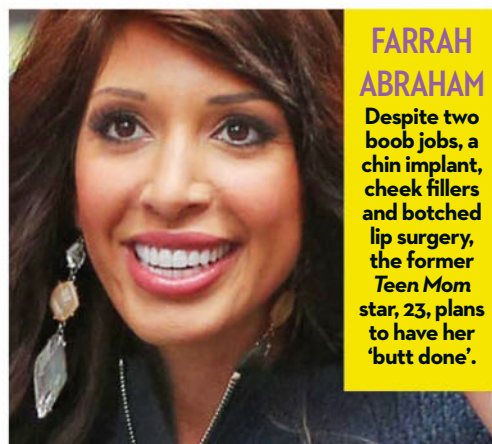

KATHY GRIFFIN

The 54-year-old comedienne insists she hasn't had Botox or fillers recently, but she does admit she's previously had a nose job, brow lift, veneers and liposuction on her arms, thighs and knees.

SAM FAIERS

The Only Way is Essex star has slammed reports of an eyelift, facelift and fillers at just 24.

FARRAH ABRAHAM

Despite two boob jobs, a chin implant, cheek fillers and botched lip surgery, the former Teen Mom star, 23, plans to have her 'butt done'.

HUNTER TYLO

Experts say the 52-year-old former soap star has had fillers, Botox and lip injections.

SOPHIA LOREN

The 80-year-old has had over $60,000 of plastic surgery, according to Dr Anthony Youn.

CARLA BRUNI

France's former first lady, 47, has had Botox and fillers, says dermatologist Dr Ben Behnam.

ADRIENNE MALOOF

The former RHOAH star, 53, recently joked she loved seeing her snaps 'before plastic surgery'.

STOP NOW!

NOT-SO-MODEL-LIKE BEHAVIOUR

'I just think it would be a lie to pretend that I'm not having a good time,' the tongue-poking model says. Once seen as playful and refreshing, some fans feel her constant hijinks are wearing thin. 'This whole "OMG guys, I'm so quirky and hilarious" routine is getting old now,' one snipes.

CARA DELEVINGNE

HEADING for MELTDOWN

PARTY DRUGS

Cara was dropped by H&M after she was snapped dropping a suspicious bag of white powder. She later brushed off the cocaine rumours, but has been partying up a storm ever since.

PUBLIC ALTERCATIONS, LATE-NIGHT PARTYING AND CANCELLED CONTRACTS - HAS CARA LOST HER WAY?

When people described things to me as a whirlwind, I never really knew what it meant,' supermodel Cara Delevingne admits. 'But then you get inside the tornado and you know exactly what it is. It's madness. You get so caught up in so many things, it can be difficult to find the time to say, "Am I actually OK with this? Am I happy?"'

While her life of international jet-setting, parties, yachts and A-list friends is certainly enviable, cracks appear to be showing in the bubbly star's striking veneer. No stranger to being snapped looking bleary-eyed while leaving nightclubs – even spotted with a suspicious baggie of white powder in 2013 – earlier this month it appeared Cara's partying had taken a dark turn. On March 8, fashion insiders claimed the Brit was involved in a violent scuffle with older model Naomi Campbell at a Paris Fashion Week Party. 'Naomi accused Cara of "disrespecting" Rihanna and started yelling, before Naomi pushed Cara, who pushed back,' one fashion mole observed, while another added, 'Cara pulled Naomi's weave, but it didn't come off.' Though Naomi, 44, has since publicly denied the rift, Cara remains strangely silent on the matter. But just days before, the 22-year-old took to Instagram, sharing a worrying post that read, 'I feel bad for the people who never go crazy,' on March 4.

While Cara brushes off suggestions she's partying too hard by claiming, 'I'm young, I'm having fun,' she admits to being unsure about her own identity. 'I'd say 15 going on 32!' she bizarrely confessed of how old she feels last year, adding, 'It's very confusing.'

Even more unsettling is the ever-changing posse of pals and romantic interests she surrounds herself with, from Rita Ora and Rihanna, to Kendall Jenner, St. Vincent, Suki Waterhouse and Georgia May Jagger – every week, Cara is spotted boozing with a new pal.

And during a recent shoot for UK Vogue, Cara and two of her closest cronies, Suki and Georgia May, were far from being on their best behaviour. 'Control yourselves, girls,' photographer Mario Testino is seen barking in some behind-the-scenes footage, while hairstylist to the stars

Sam McKnight mutters, 'I need a taser.'

This scathing report comes less than a year after Vogue writer Plum Sykes described in withering tones how Cara had overslept twice for an interview.

Cara was barely booked for any shows at London's recent Fashion Week, suggesting her erratic antics haven't worn thin for many. And with life only set to get more frantic – her new movie Paper Towns hits cinemas this year – could the fights, boozing and bad behaviour swiftly spiral into something more sinister? •

“It can be difficult to find the time to say, “Am I happy?””

The cute cousins looked adorable in their matching pink outfits, although it's not Nori's usual colour, her mum admits. 'North doesn't typically wear pink,' Kim says. Who knew actress Emmy Rossum was such a huge basketball fanatic? The Shameless star was sitting courtside for the intense showdown between the San Antonio Spurs and the New York Knicks on March 17 in New York City. Emmy, 28, proved to be almost as entertaining as the game itself, treating onlookers to a range of facial expressions while cheering on her team, and giving new meaning to the term 'emotional rollercoaster'. 'I love my team so I don't give up on them,' she says of the Knicks's turbulent history.

Celebrity stylist Rachel Zoe was spotted in Los Angeles on March 17 struggling to keep up with her son Skylar ahead of his fourth birthday on March 22. The little man was decked out in green for St Patrick's Day and happily wearing a paper crown to acknowledge his VIP status as birthday boy. 'Skylar is like a happy pill that we take when we wake up,' the proud mum, 43, gushes of the bubbly tot.

A NANNY
PER CHILD

THE JOLIE-PITTS

While Angelina and Brad have a tribe of nannies, she says they try to be as hands-on as possible. 'We make sure both of us are at home for at least breakfast or dinner,' the actress explains.

When celebrities step out in their ritzy neighbourhoods with their designer-clad kids in tow, they like to let us think that they're doing it all. Everyone from Ashton Kutcher to Kourtney Kardashian claims to be parenting without a nanny. 'I love doing everything myself,' says Kourtney. But more often than not there's actually an army of help behind them. 'I always see famous people being like, "No, it's not hard at all." Well, that's because we have nannies, people!' says a refreshingly honest Kelly Clarkson.

Angelina Jolie is one star parent who isn't so up-front about the staff she relies on to help her with her six kids. Despite giving the impression that she and husband Brad Pitt are flying solo with their brood, according to celeb biographer Andrew Morton, the couple actually have 25 people on the payroll – including a nanny for each child, four nurses and even their own personal doctor.

So why the secrecy? Nanny to the stars Philippa Christian, who started off her career working for cricketer Shane Warne, says many of her celeb clients would prefer the public didn't know she existed.

'A lot of famous mothers, especially those in America, don't want people to know they have a nanny because it looks indulgent,' says Melbourne-born Philippa. 'When you're out, they tell you to interact as if you're a member of the family. It's weird when I'm flicking through a magazine and see a paparazzi shot of one of my clients with me in the background.'

Philippa, who earns $500,000 a year following her famous employers, which have included Victoria's Secret models and reality TV stars, on private jets, film sets and to awards shows, says the biggest no-no in the world of celebrity nannies is revealing secrets about your client. 'Some nannies have gone off and done that and they never get employed again,' she says.

Which is why when most former employees decide to spill the beans on what it's really like to be the home help for a superstar, they tend to do so anonymously. Like one of Brangelina's former live-in nannies, who revealed that anything goes when it comes to the couple's kids. 'Angelina doesn't believe in old-fashioned restrictions because she

According to the help, the celebrity family have six TVs going at all times and each child can have whatever they want for dinner and buy whatever they want with their parents' fortune, too! Shiloh once spent $5000 on Amazon in one sitting, according to an insider.

Fellow Hollywood royalty Gwyneth Paltrow once remarked, 'I have an amazing nanny,' but she must not think so highly of the former employee, who let slip that the actress relies too heavily on the help. 'She's always very conscious to be seen holding her kids' hands in public but at home she often relied on the nanny. They were the ones her children spent the most time with,' says the spy.

Gwyneth's pal Beyoncé, who reportedly has six nannies on hand to tend to the needs of her pampered only child Blue Ivy, is also a hands-off mum. While she once insisted, 'I love changing diapers,' one of her ex-nannies

BECKS & THE STAFF

Rebecca Loos worked for Victoria and David Beckham and in 2004, alleged she slept with the soccer star. He called the claims 'ludicrous' and Posh, 40, stood by him. 'I trust my husband 100 per cent.' The couple now have another assistant and more kids.

says that simply isn't true. 'She doesn't have to do any of the dirty work,' says the insider.

While dealing with soiled nappies is just one of the downsides of the job – along with a demanding clientele, long hours and constant surveillance by security cameras and bodyguards – Philippa says it has plenty of perks, too.

'It astounds me how much the clothes I'm given are worth,' says the 27-year-old. 'In the past 15 years, I've built up an impressive wardrobe. The mothers I work for are often friends with designers and get more free gifts than they know what to do with.'

While Philippa isn't able to name the rest of her star clients, she has mixed with the former nannies of Britney Spears, Michael Jackson, The Rolling Stones band members and Reese Witherspoon, and is happy to share some of the most outrageous celebrity demands she's had to contend with.

'All of the staff had to wear evil eye jewellery – which is gold necklaces and gold bracelets with a little eye on them – to deflect any negative energy and negative spirits from the house and from the children,' she says of one gig, while during another the famous mum asked her to give her child diamond water baths and others to plan paparazzi decoys!

'Some people are horrible to work for,' admits Philippa, who has faced more than a few challenges when it comes to her star charges.

'I worked for a model who ordered me to put her teenage daughter on a diet even though she clearly wasn't overweight,' she says. 'It's difficult because I have to follow orders, but the child's welfare always comes first, so I compromised by making tiny changes like cutting her bread into thinner slices.'

But Philippa says despite the downsides, it's still a one-in-a-million career. 'It's a really fun lifestyle – lots of holidays, five-star hotels, private yachts, first-class plane trips and meeting lots of famous friends of the families along the way,' she says. ●

Social media fan Colin is notorious for getting into some intense Twitter feuds. From a 2011 spat with A Current Affair host Tracy Grimshaw, to a recent war of words with fellow Sydney chef Nathan Sasi, whom Colin called a '#tattooedbitch' after Nathan had a below-the-belt dig at Colin's kids, the Irishman doesn't shy away from drama. Hailing from Dublin, Ireland, travel-loving Colin moved to Australia in 1999. His parents owned a shoe shop, but Colin - the eldest of three siblings - was inspired by their cooking from a young age. 'I've wanted to be a chef since I was in primary school,' says Colin, 41.

DON'T CALL HIM A CELEBRITY CHEF

Despite starring in TV's highest-rating show, Colin's keen to be seen as a working chef first, a TV star second. 'Yes, I'm on a cooking show, but I also work as well. I don't like people who do cooking shows and they've never been a chef and then they go and tell Australians how to cook.'

CRAZY 'BC

MKR BROMANCE

Despite their three very different personalities, MKR judges Pete Evans, Manu Feildel and Colin are professional co-workers - now. Back in the day, Colin took aim at Manu and his appearance on the 2011 season of Dancing with the Stars. 'If I did a show it would be a good show,' Colin sniped at the time. Nowadays, the MKR boys have turned the digs from personal to more playful! 'They're pussies. I'm the boy!' he jokes.

Colin (with Manu and Pete) may be a MKR judge, just don't call him a celebrity chef - 'I hate the term; it f---ing drives me mad'

NO VANITY

Since joining MKR in 2013, Colin's role on the show has grown. 'Maybe I'm doing it wrong and that's what the bosses like,' says the cheeky chef. 'I think I've just grown and gotten better, because I don't think I was any good the first year. I think I was terrible actually!'

KEEPING IT REAL

'Spare time for me is kids, motorbikes, cycling, drumming and swimming. I sleep about four hours a night,' says Colin. He hasn't got a lot of time for tricky fad diets either. 'I need a red wine at night and I like my ice-cream,' he says. 'I haven't the DNA to be [Paleo] strict. Fat is flavour.'

BOYS TOYS

Colin's got a serious thing for motorbikes - he owns a high-powered Kawasaki and a flashy red Ducati. 'I got a new one this year when I got signed [on MKR] because obviously I got paid more,' says Colin of his $46,000 dream machine.

LET'S FACE IT... HE'S A CUTIE!

OUT COLIN

The fact that her season one co-star Andrea Moss sent her a 'legal letter' concerned about the contents of her autobiography should be enough to send any fan of The Real Housewives of Melbourne's Gina Liano into a tizz of anticipation for her book, which lands on shelves April 1.

'She was hoping that I'd respect the confidentiality we'd previously discussed,' reveals the 48-year-old barrister, who admits she didn't let anyone have an early look at Fearless: My Life My Way. 'Did I write about her? Well, it is a book about my life and there's an entire chapter in there on Housewives.'

The Melbourne maven doesn't shy away from anything thrown her way, and that's what has made her the 'fearless woman' she is today.

At the end of last year, between filming season two of RHOM and work commitments, the single mum of two sons, Christos, 24, and Myles, 18, jotted down her journey. 'People who know me often said that I should write a book – they said my crazy life was stranger than fiction, really,' chuckles Gina.

Initially the book was to be solely about her battle with cancer, but it ended up becoming a pivotal chapter in a story full of ups and downs. Gina's journey is a tale of inspiration that will impress every woman, not just Housewives fans (or Housewives themselves – 'They've already put in their orders,' she says).

As fans of the show know too well, Gina is never anything short of impressive.

In Gina's words...

Early childhood

How could Gina return to RHOM after the 'prolific bullying' in the first season? The Italian-born star says she learnt at a very young age how to deal with haters...

In 1977 we moved schools again, this time to Firbank, a local girls' grammar school, which was walking distance from home. This was my fifth school and I was only in Grade Six. I really hoped this was it. I could feel myself becoming more socially awkward.

Was this due to my age? Entering adolescence is never easy. I felt the girls to be very cold in their approach. There was one girl in particular who thought calling me a 'wog' was OK. The taunting started in Grade Six and continued into Year Seven. I didn't care about the word; I was more upset by her level of contempt for me for no reason other than my nationality. I had never been called a 'wog' before, nor had I ever been teased. I might have been looking more like a wog as I was growing out of my baby face.

One day I'd had enough of her. We were standing in the bathroom at the wash basin and she started the taunting. I turned around, picked her up, put her in the plastic rubbish bin and rolled her down the stairs. I never said a word. I went back to the classroom, retrieved my school bag and walked out of the school to the sound of girls cheering in the background. Evidently, she hadn't only picked on me. I had been pushed too far.

ABOUT THE BOOK

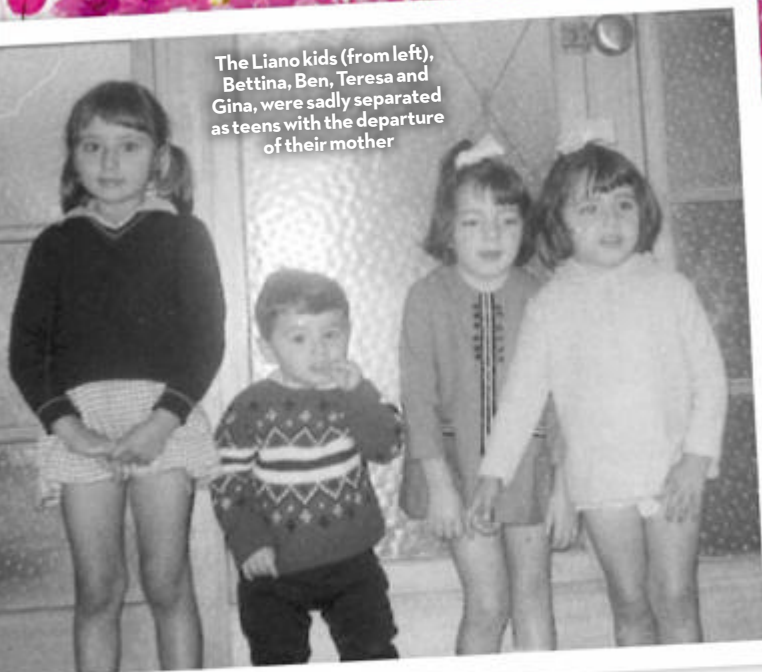

It took Gina less than 10 days to put together her autobiography. 'I hope everyone likes it, it took a lot of courage,' she says of the book she wrote entirely from memory doing 'all-nighters'.

GINA LIANO Secrets EXPOSED

IN A REVEALING TELL-ALL, THE REAL HOUSEWIVES OF MELBOURNE STAR OPENS UP ABOUT HER FASCINATING AND FEARLESS LIFE

The Liano kids (from left), Bettina, Ben, Teresa and Gina, were sadly separated as teens with the departure of their mother

Teen years

Gina learnt to be a strong, independent woman in her teens when her mother moved out of the family home, leaving her and her sisters to fend for themselves.

After my father remarried in 1982, Mum decided that it was time for her to marry her new partner and move out of our home. She rang my father for the first time in years, to tell him her plan and to get his promise that he would look after us – he agreed. Dad would have to pick up the pieces. Ben was 14, I was 16, Teresa was 17 and Bettina was 18.

Ben went to live with Dad and his new wife. I was just finishing Year 11, sitting my final exams, and didn't know what to do now that Mum was moving out.

I confided in my favourite art teacher and she took me to see the headmistress. I expressed my anxiety about my future and the choices I faced.

When she left, my mother told me that I could choose where I wanted to live. She believed that at 16 I was old enough to be with my sisters; after all, she was married at 16. I don't think she realised the tremendous burden she had placed on me by granting me that freedom. I told her that I was staying with the girls, that I had received a scholarship and was planning to study law. She agreed to let me stay.

I was probably too young to be living without parents, but I felt safe with Bettina and Teresa. In a way, Bettina became our mother. She was 18 and working with our father. She would shop, cook and pay all the bills. She was a bit of a taskmaster and never allowed me to indulge in self-pity about my struggle, telling me to 'snap out of it'. Teresa was working full-time in fashion and spent a lot of her time partying.

As for me, I wasn't loving it so much. These days, I probably would have ended up in foster care – though I don't think my mother would have let it get to that. She'd never have allowed me to live with someone we didn't know.

Marriage & Motherhood

A severe case of cold feet didn't stop Gina from going through with the wedding of her childhood dreams.

Having lived with my boyfriend for a couple of years, at the ripe old age of 21, I decided it was time to get married. I chose a beautiful ring with three individual diamonds surrounded by smaller diamonds. My husband-to-be was 28 and not that keen to get married, but in those days it was my way or the highway. Maybe not a lot has changed – I'm still sure about what I want and equally sure about what I don't want.

January 14, 1989, was an overwhelmingly hot day. I had been preparing for this day for months – although in truth, I'd been gearing up for this wedding my whole life. Finally, there I was, a bride at 22 wearing a beautiful wedding dress custom-made by Fiona Scanlan, with gold ribbon, seed pearls and pearl buttons.

We hosted 150 guests – not a large wedding by European standards. We played jazz, Greek music and Kate Ceberano sang with a live band as we danced the night away. Kate was one of the celebrities we'd been dressing; Bettina Liano was amongst her favourite labels.

A few months later I was pregnant. The honeymoon was now off the agenda, but I didn't mind: I was excited at the prospect of being a mother.

On Mother's Day 1990, Gina was thrilled to give birth to her first son, Christos, however, long-running tension with her mother-in-law saw the marriage come to an end 18 months later. Not long after, at the age of 25, Gina met her second husband with whom she had her son Myles (born on Father's Day 1996). A decade on, the mum-of-two faced her toughest struggle yet when at 35 she was diagnosed with bowel cancer (check out next week's issue). Her husband supported her throughout the treatment, but the illness took its toll on the relationship and in 2005 they decided to go their separate ways.

For the past eight years, Gina has been in a relationship with property developer Dean Giannarelli.

'Was I in love with him? I don't really know,' Gina says of her childhood sweetheart, but they remain friends to this day

Gina admits she had to deal with bullies at school, labelling them 'idiots'

Housewives

In December 2012, Gina met for coffee with RHOM's casting agents after they'd hunted her down via her sister, Teresa, and so began her journey as a TV star.

I arrived to find a whole production crew waiting in the wings – cameras, lighting and sound guys. I knew Andrea Moss and two others out of the 12 women, but I had heard of most of them. There were sandwiches, chocolates and Champagne. I went home after the lunch and didn't give it too much thought.

I went overseas in March 2013 and stayed with my partner who'd set up an apartment in Atlanta. While there, I received a phone call from the casting agent. The broadcaster who'd commissioned the show had settled on their cast and had agreed to film it in Melbourne; it was going to be called The Real Housewives of Melbourne. They had selected six women and I was one of them.

By July I was formally offered the role and given the contract to sign. I wasn't entirely happy with the terms offered and, being the lawyer I am, I continued to negotiate. Ultimately, all the women would be bound by the same contract so I knew every term I negotiated would benefit the whole team.

I felt quite burdened by the decision: to sign or walk away. It was all being handed to me, but I wasn't sure whether I wanted it. I worried that if the show failed, or if I failed on the show, it would affect my practice. I couldn't put my boys at risk. We had a good life together and were comfortable. Did I really need to complicate things? The other significant issue was that signing the contract would tie me to the filming schedule for weeks to come, preventing me from visiting my partner overseas.

Pen in hand, it was time to decide. I thought again about my dream, and that until now I had always been fearless. So, with my innate spirit of adventure, my faith and my fearless attitude, I signed.

We filmed for 16 weeks from July 2013, and by December we had season one. It was an absolute rollercoaster ride and I was so relieved when it was over. I had worn 85 different outfits in 16 weeks, which was an achievement in itself. My hair hurt from all the blow-waves and my feet needed a rest.

The show premiered on February 23, 2014. I was surprised that the show was so popular; I had thought Australians would be reluctant to embrace a show that was based on an American franchise, as we tend to dislike mimicry. But the producers had put together a spectacular program.

Once it became clear that the audience supported me as the series unfolded, I felt very relieved. The dynamics were such that initial friendships turned sour fairly quickly and I was left to fend for myself amongst a group of girls who had all turned nasty. The audience didn't like this. Some viewers threatened to turn off; they couldn't stand seeing me

No matter what she's doing with her fellow Housewives, Gina always looks glam! 'My style is very European,' she explains. 'I go to a lot of effort' mistreated. Some of my friends cried watching it. Teresa couldn't watch at all, Bettina wasn't impressed by how I was treated, nor were my boys or my partner.

I seriously tossed up whether I would participate in a second season. I had endured months of aggressive behaviour which had worn me down. I knew that the audience who had been sympathetic would lose compassion if I put myself back into the same situation. Only an idiot would do that. I decided to come back for another season for a few reasons. The cast had changed so I knew the dynamic would be different. I hoped that the new season would give me an opportunity to reveal a different aspect of my personality. Furthermore, I had drawn a large following and I didn't want to disappoint my fans by not reappearing.

My family supported my decision to return, once again trusting that I could look after myself. They know I am a capable woman who can bring the wisdom of an incredible life's journey onto the show.

Perhaps my adventurous life had been preparing me for this. Sometimes you need to take a hold of what's in front of you, and you need to be fearless. ●

DUFF

MY 10- BABY PLAN

MOVING ON FROM A RECENT ROUGH PATCH, THE PINT-SIZED STAR IS HOPEFUL FOR THE FUTURE

It's fun to have a secret,' Hilary Duff smiles. It's hard to believe that this mother-of-one, who grew up on screens around the world from the tender age of 11, could possibly have any secrets. But the actress admits not all has been revealed about her life so far. A cheeky Hilary – who dated rocker Joel Madden for two years before settling down with her now-estranged husband, former ice-hockey player Mike Comrie, 34 – casually admits she had a wild past nobody knew about. 'I think everyone should have something where you know it's not exactly what you're looking for, but you just have a wicked good time,' she says, possibly referring to her time with Joel.

It's been a busy few years for Hilary, who has been putting the finishing touches on her next album release – her first in over seven years – and filming episodes for her new TV gig on comedy-drama Younger. In between, she's been soaking up every moment she can with her gorgeous little boy, Luca, who just celebrated his third birthday.

OK! chats to the 27-year-old to uncover more of her secrets – from love, family and career, to why she embraces her stretch marks after having her son, and can't wait to have 10 more just like him!

You started on TV at 11 years old and have grown up in front of cameras ever since. How have you stayed so grounded?

A lot of people have compared me to other people who came up when I came up, and I don't know what it is. I think part of it is just me, maybe my family and the friends that I've kept. No-one really let me get away with being treated different in my immediate circle of people in my life. That said, I definitely had rough patches. I grew up in the industry. Being an 18-year-old doing what I was doing, even a 20-year-old, you're searching for your identity. I did it in a public way and it kind of messed with my privacy. I had to take a really long break from everything. I was like, 'I don't really care about getting the best role anymore or making a career choice, I just need to step back, be at home, and hang out like a normal 20-year-old person.'

Considering you've been in the business for over 15 years, do you ever think how growing older in Hollywood will affect your career choices?

I just think there's a way to embrace every age that we go through. That's why I think my new show Younger is so amazing – because it has so much in it for everyone. It embraces all ages. I think there's this common ground that we all meet on and where we're all learning from each other. I love how we're all there for each other as friends and helping each other get through certain bumps in the road. I hope as I age that I continue to embrace it just like that, and enjoy what it brings me.

Most women are their worst critics when it comes to their bodies, but you seem to have embraced yours pre- and post-baby...

I love to work out, but I'm just not that concerned with being the skinniest person. I'm not a model; I'm an actress. I always feel like I'm in the five-to-ten pound [two-to-five kilo] struggle, but my life is so busy. I'm just not that concerned, really. I'm normal and I'm perfectly happy being that way. Some weeks I'm like, 'Man, my clothes are fitting so good,' ➔

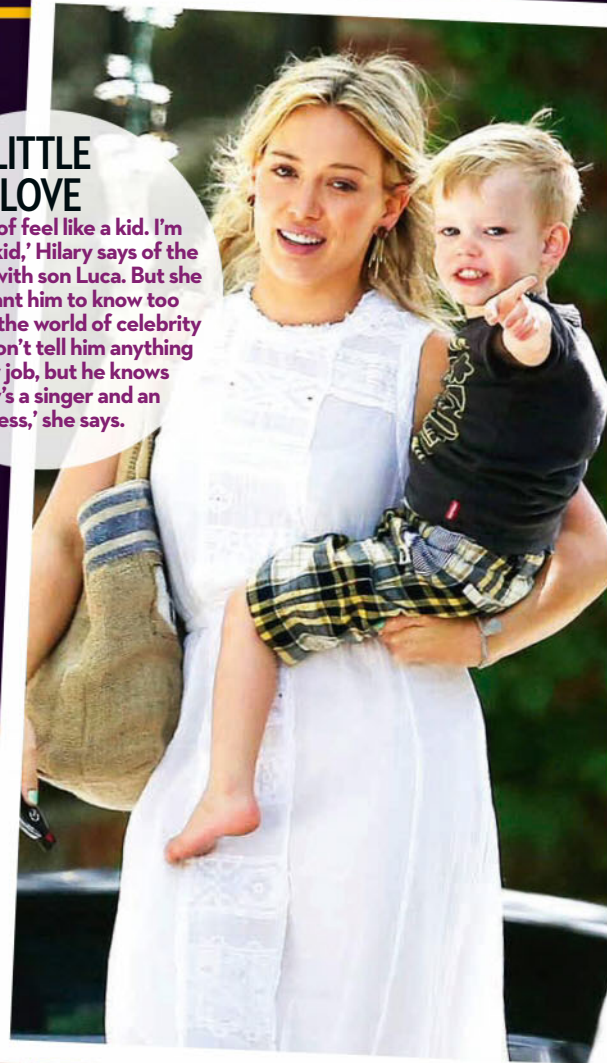

WHY I HAD TO DIVORCE MIKE

After being married for five years, and a period of trying to make things work, Hilary Duff and Mike Comrie called it quits. 'We're really good friends and we have so much respect for each other and obviously Luca is our number one priority,' she says of the divorce, which only became official earlier this year. Hilary decided to sign on the dotted line after Mike spent a drunken night out last month, during which he reportedly propositioned his waitress and asked an unknown woman at a bar, 'How much for sex?' But the actress isn't getting hung up about going through a public divorce. 'The best way to handle it is by just owning your shit. I'm human and this is what happened. None of us is perfect,' she says.

LITTLE LOVE

'I still kind of feel like a kid. I'm a kid with a kid,' Hilary says of the fun she has with son Luca. But she doesn't want him to know too much about the world of celebrity just yet. 'I don't tell him anything about my job, but he knows Mummy's a singer and an actress,' she says.

Hilary and her sister Haylie are super-tight, and will soon be able to bond over mummy duties, with Haylie expecting her first child in May

Aaron's AWKWARD CRUSH

They had a teen romance many moons ago, but Aaron Carter seemingly still holds a flame for Hilary, expressing his love for her last year on Twitter. 'Don't be that stupid douche that loses the love of your life forever. Like me...', he posted, followed by, 'I'll spend the rest of my life trying to better myself to get back to her. I don't care what ANY of you think.' But Hilary isn't impressed. 'Him reaching out through social media? It's ridiculous! But then people do it all the time, like Chris Brown and Karrueche [Tran]? Come on, guys. Keep it between text messages.' Ouch!

and then some weeks I'm like, 'I need to cut back on a few things,' but that's it. I don't fall into the trap of having to be 110 pounds [50kg].

We have to say you are looking particularly hot of late - have you amped up your work-out routine?

I train at an awesome gym where there's only two pieces of equipment: a treadmill and a VersaClimber. It's this big open gym with ropes and big weighted balls and sledgehammers. And we do all these Spider-Man crawls down a track. Now I work out three times a week for an hour. I'll run a track or do a stair. And I'm dancing all the time. I forget how much I love to dance!

Did you feel the Hollywood pressure to be a certain size after having Luca?

Yeah. I went to get my hair blowdried at the salon, and I hadn't stepped outside in, like, 15 days. I was learning how to be a new mum, and I needed to get my hair done. Then they're like, 'Hilary Debuts Her Post-Baby Body!' I was like, 'I'm not debuting shit right now. I'm just going on an errand run!' There is way too much pressure on women these days. It took me a whole 10 months to build a baby.

You were quite open about the ongoing relationship you had with Luca's dad, Mike Comrie, even when you split in 2014. What made you decide to finalise the divorce earlier this year?

Mike and I were very in love when we met,

[and] we spent the majority of our time together really happy. It wasn't working well enough to stay together, but there was still a lot of love involved. It was just a slow set-in of us not being the match that we used to be. I'm lucky for the person he is and I am, and how we decided to handle this.

Can you see yourself tying the knot again in the future?

I don't want to sound bitter because I'm definitely not, but I don't know if people are meant to be together forever. Things happen over a long relationship that you can't always fight. A marriage of 20 years, the accomplishment of that must feel really great, but there are also huge sacrifices. I just always want to fight for happiness.

Keeping you busy is your new role in TV show Younger, which is made by Darren Star who created Sex and the City. You've been living in Brooklyn during filming - how are you enjoying the new 'hood?

I love it. I'm loving living in Brooklyn. It's a great experience. I even got a little Brooklyn tattoo [on her right bicep]!

Was that a spontaneous decision?

I thought about it for a while, but all of my tattoos have kind of been spontaneous.

And does Luca like Brooklyn as well?

Yeah, he's with me all the time. He loves New York. He didn't want to leave. He loved getting to walk everywhere.

At three years old, what is he obsessed with at the moment?

He is all about Cars – the Cars movie. He's really into racing and boy things!

Speaking of kids, your big sister, Haylie, is pregnant with her first child. Have you given her any advice about motherhood?

No! She is funny. The other day, we were going to lunch together and she was like, 'I am stressing hard right now. I just googled stretch marks!' And I was like, 'Don't do that! I got some, and they look way better than they did in the beginning. And look at what I have to show for it, a little boy who is amazing. I will take 10 more!'

Is it right that you have been working on new music with Ed Sheeran?

Yeah, I did a song with Ed for my record. The funny thing is that it's called Tattoo! It was amazing. I am such a big fan of his.

How did that come about?

I heard the demo of the song and I was telling my A&R [artists and repertoire] girl, 'Don't let anyone else hear that. I want that song!' Then he heard that I wanted to do it, he came in and we recorded together. It was amazing.

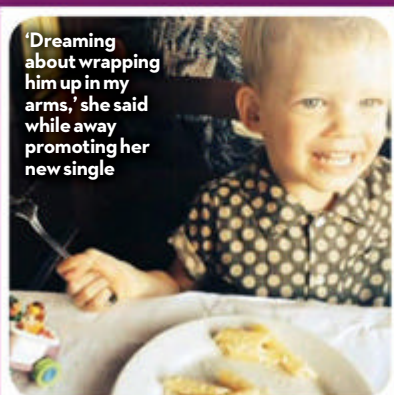

When is the album coming out?

I'm not sure. Being on the show, I had to take a step back from music. But it's fine because it's a good move for me. I feel passionate about the character and the cast.

The music industry seems to have changed so much in the last 10 years...

It has and I have to constantly re-evaluate that. Music is not my only career, it's going to be on a smaller scale than it was before and I have to accept that, even though it's hard. Ideally, I want to have the best of both worlds. ●

BODY AFTER BABY

Posting a super-hot bikini selfie to Instagram recently, Hilary proved she's shed her baby weight, and then some! But the actress took her time slimming down after Luca was born. 'I lost my baby weight from boxing, and I have this awesome trainer, Gabe,' she says. 'I was already there, but I definitely shed, like, 10 more pounds [five kilos] from doing two-a-days for two or three weeks, an hour each session.'

TAI HARA

My healthy eating never lasts long

Newly engaged Tai, 25, who proposed to former Hi-5 member Fely Irvine over the summer, finds fitness is key to keeping his H&A character Andy Barrett looking buff in his boardies.

What are your tips for staying healthy?

I'd have to say eating healthy and trying to live an active lifestyle.

Do you follow a specific diet?

I try to eat healthy but it doesn't last long.

So how do you stay looking so fit?

I just live an active lifestyle and spend a lot of time outdoors.

What type of exercise do you enjoy?

I grew up by the coast and surfing has always been a big part of my life. I recently tried paddle boarding - I like beach activities.

Any plans to get in tip-top shape for the wedding?

Not really, I don't [like to] follow any particular diets.

MATT LITTLE

I've got a really big sweet tooth!

Playing VJ Patterson has won Matt a legion of lady fans, and the 21-year-old doesn't deny that he's definitely the sweetest guy out there...

How do you keep yourself looking fit?

Chocolate and squats.

Have you got a bit of a sweet tooth?

I'm a big fan of cake - brownies and banana bread, but all in moderation.

Would you call yourself a romantic?

Oh God yes. Massive romantic idealist (and I love it).

JAKE SPEER

Call me the mini Pete Evans

On screen he's headstrong Oscar MacGuire, twin bro to Evelyn (Philippa), and off screen, Jake, 23, puts himself in charge of sorting out the 'boys from the men'.

Are you big on fitness?

Boxing is a new love but squash is my first love. An hour on a squash court sorts the men from the boys. I've set up a few matches with the cast.

And we hear that you're a fan of healthy chef Pete Evans...

I've recently been inspired by Pete's The Paleo Way program. So far it's been awesome.

That's a big commitment!

Yep. Stay away from processed foods! Eat organically, and think before you eat.

Are you big on commitment?

I've been with my high school sweetheart Leanne for six years now, so yes!

'My office is one of the most beautiful locations in Sydney,' raves Jake

I work out so I can eat what I want

Growing up in a small town in New Zealand, Jess, 26, was stoked at the opportunity to move to Australia and play the complicated Denny Miller. In her down-time Jess likes to keep fit with hockey, and eat everything she can!

How do you keep yourself swimsuit ready?

I play hockey, it's my favourite sport. I have always been really sporty. I do Pilates and go for runs and walks.

Do you follow a certain diet?

Nah, I figure if I work out then I can eat what I want! I work out a few times a week.

What's your favourite indulgence?

Cheese is so yum. Hot chips with chicken salt, Cold Rock ice-cream, chocolate...

I can't pick just one.

What are your biggest health tips?

Eat fresh and organic food as much as possible and pick an exercise you love.

PHILIPPA NORTHEAST

I try to exercise every day

She might play the gentle Evelyn MacGuire on H&A, but in real life, lovable Pip, 20, is a fun-loving girl who loves nothing more than to spend her free time on roadtrips with her boyfriend, Isaac Brown, devouring healthy snacks.

What does body confidence mean to you?

Just feeling happy, healthy and proud of your body!

Are you a big fan of exercise?

I try to do some form of exercise every day.

What's your favourite form of exercise?

I love yoga and running, plus I play AFL once a week. I also have a few surfboards, but I'm not great, and I recently played squash with Jake, which was fun.

What do you like to do to unwind?

This summer I went roadtripping with my boyfriend, so that, and eating nutritious, delicious food!

KASSANDRA CLEMENTI

I'd opt for a one-piece over a bikini

Her character, Maddy Osborne, has had nothing short of a dramatic time on the show these past few months, but Cassandra, 24, is all about keeping healthy and fit, with her morals in check and her Nutribullet in overdrive.

What's your secrets to staying healthy?

Everything in moderation, and get out and about. I enjoy Pilates and running with my dog, Summer.

Bikini or one-piece for the beach?

I prefer a one-piece.

What does body confidence mean to you?

It has nothing to do with how much you weigh or what size your clothes are, or anything superficial. It's loving who you are and being confident within that.

Do you follow a certain diet?

I'm a vegetarian for moral reasons and I'm obsessed with my Nutribullet.

'They are hilarious!' says Jess of her castmates. 'I have never laughed as much as I have since I started on this show'

In between takes, Cassandra says, 'We also do a lot of rapping and have 6am dance parties'

HE'S TV'S HOTTEST STAR AND HAS BEEN MAKING US LOL FOR DECADES.
THERE'S SOMETHING ABOUT JIMMY...

ver the past 12 months, the phrase 'Did you see [insert celebrity] on Jimmy Fallon?' has been heard on an ever more frequent basis around the globe. And it can only mean one thing – comedian Jimmy Fallon is quickly creeping up the list of 'household name' TV hosts, populated by the likes of Ellen, Oprah and David Letterman.

Since taking the reins of The Tonight Show from Jay Leno in early 2014, Jimmy has seen the show go from strength to strength, as evidenced by the long list of superstar guests and some jaw-dropping social media stats. With Jimmy at the desk, The Tonight Show has seen its Twitter followers jump from 514,000 to 1.8 million; the show's Facebook page went from 765,000 to 4.6 million followers; and the show's YouTube channel rocketed from 1.5 million to 5.2 million subscribers. This puts him in front of every other late-night host, from Jimmy Kimmel to David Letterman – and the numbers continue to grow.

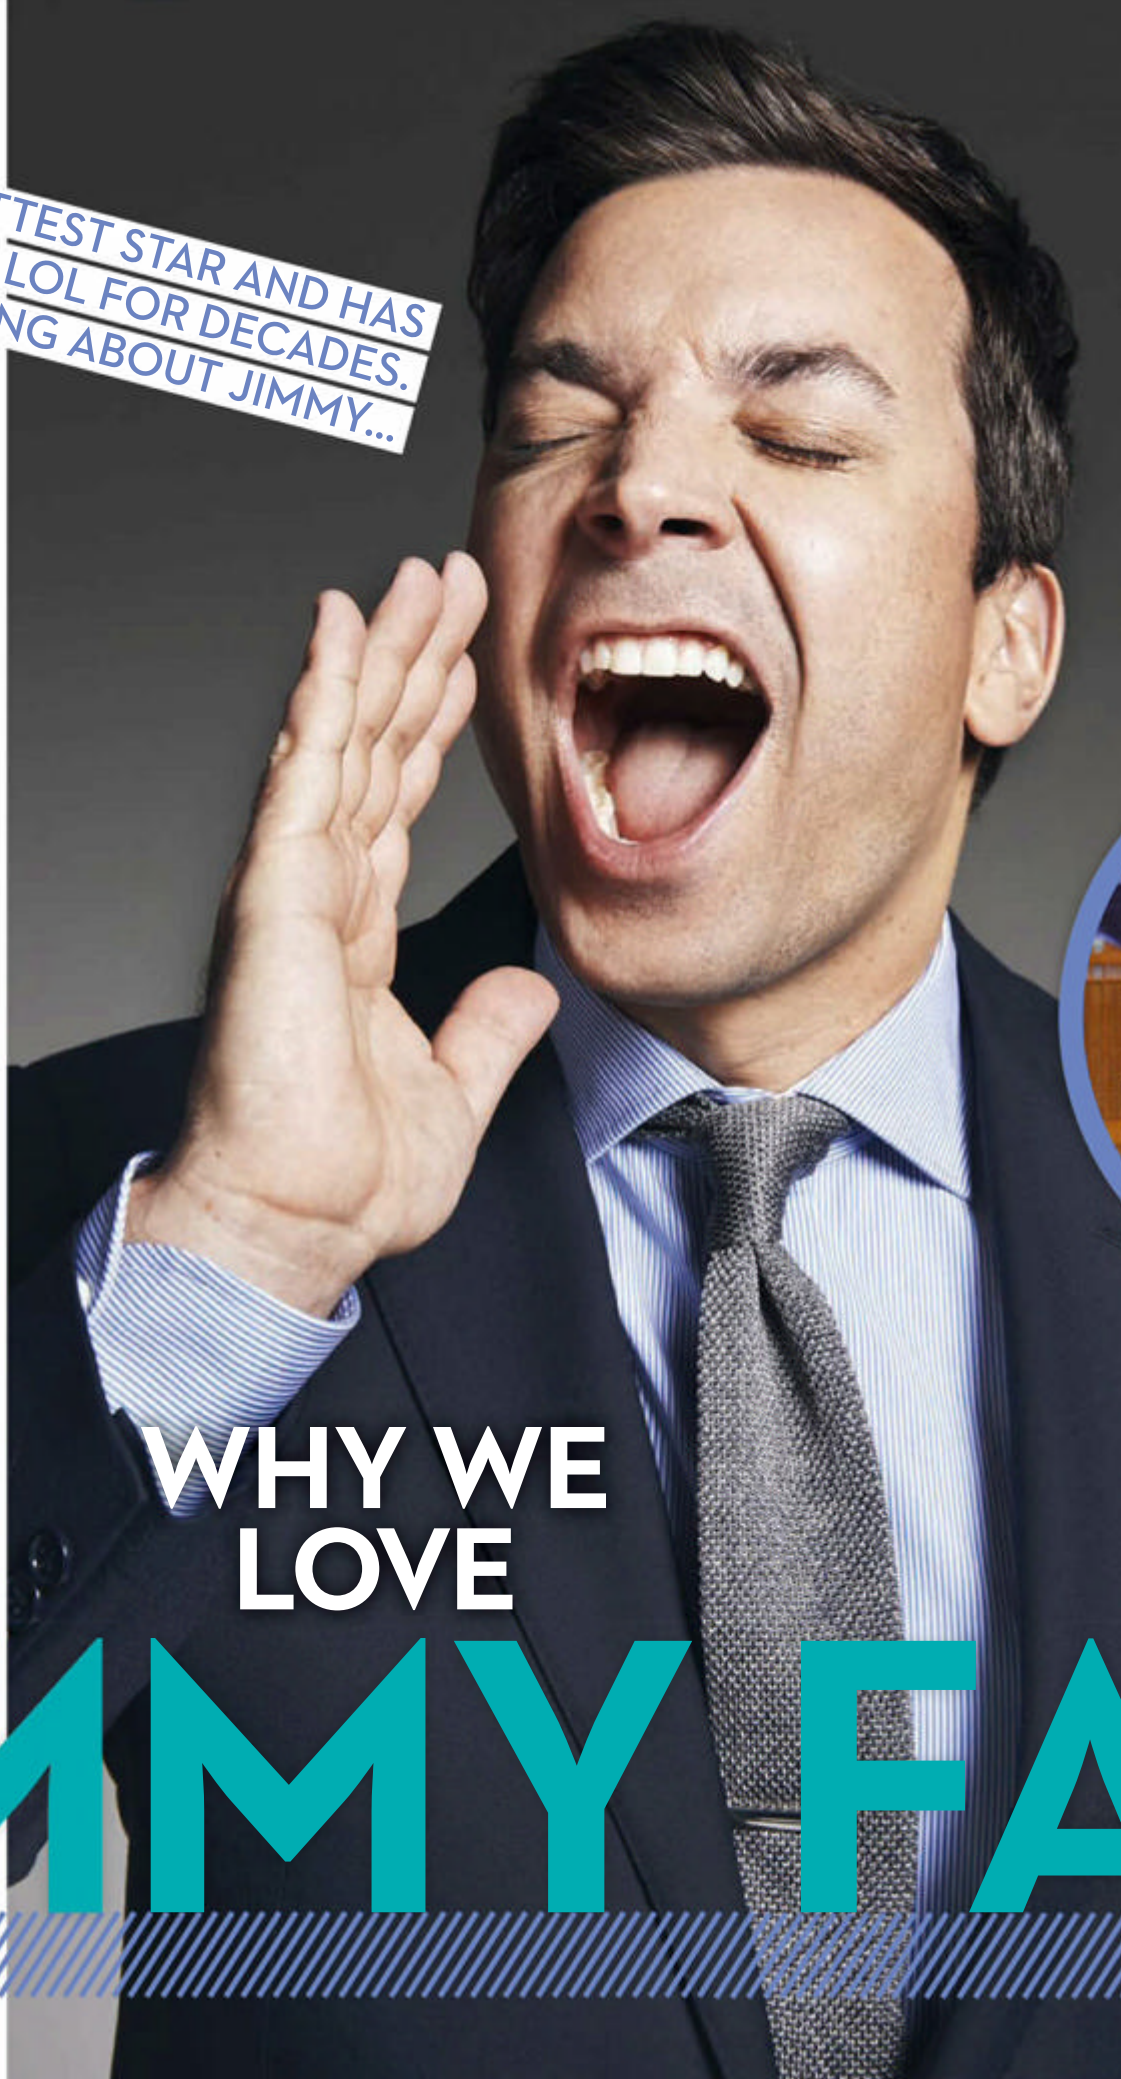

But man-of-the-hour Jimmy, 40, has barely had time to linger over the long list of A-list celebrities he has welcomed onto his show. 'I don't ever really know what I'm doing until we have some time off or someone asks about it,' he says. 'They'll say, "You did a sketch with Carol Burnett on The Tonight Show." And I'll be like, "I did? That's right – I totally did that!"'

It's not just his work on The Tonight Show that has brought him fame – Jimmy was a much-loved member of Saturday Night Live and was in the Late Night hosting seat for many years before taking over the coveted The Tonight Show spot.

OK! delves into Jimmy's world to find out about the man behind the jokester...

WHY WE LOVE

JIMMY FALLON

“ I never knew I could be this happy, that's the truth”

JOINING THE SNL FAMILY

Auditioning for one of the most revered jobs in comedy would make anyone nervous, but fellow comedian Tina Fey says Jimmy walked into the room as if he had already been hired. 'I was there in the room that day,' she explains. 'He's one of two people I've ever seen who was completely ready to be on the show. Kristen Wiig is the other one... And Jimmy was ready – like, if there had been a show to do that night.'

The first take is normally the worst, but not in Jimmy's case. His audition has had over 3.5 million views on YouTube.

FINDING LOVE

When Jimmy met his wife, Nancy, he was convinced she was his perfect partner. 'I think you just look for the person you have the most fun with. And that's enough. You realise, "Wait, I can just keep having fun with her forever?"'

Jimmy says being a dad to Winnie and Frances (not pictured) is 'just a magical, fun thing'

COMPUTERS, NOT COMEDIANS

Jimmy might have his dream job, but the New York native originally wanted to be the next Steve Jobs! 'My dream was to get a job at IBM, like my dad,' he says. 'That seemed like a logical dream. The Tonight Show didn't seem like an actual job that you could have.'

Being a fan of Johnny Carson, the show's original host, Jimmy admits the thought never crossed his mind that his comedic hero would retire. 'I didn't even know what that word was,' Jimmy laughs. 'I thought he would live forever. So there was no possible way for that to be a dream of mine.'

FAMILY LIFE

The television host now has two beautiful girls, Winnie, 20 months and Frances, three months, but the comedian admits he and his wife Nancy went through years of pain trying to fall pregnant. 'We struggled for a good five years trying to have a kid,' he says. 'People have struggled longer than we did, but there's shots involved and acupuncture and sleeping upside down. We tried everything.'

The pair decided to use a surrogate for both of their daughters, but kept the news quiet. 'I didn't even tell my family. That's the only way to keep it real secret. Just don't tell anyone,' Jimmy shares.

With two beautiful daughters under the age of two, sleep isn't high on Jimmy's agenda – not that he minds! 'I didn't think it was going to be this fun,' he says. 'But everything just gets heightened when you have a baby. The volume gets turned up on life. I never knew I could be this happy, and that's the truth.'

It sounds simple: just mouth the words to a song. But this game has created more interest online than any other skit – Emma Stone is most popular!

FALLON

MAKING TIME FOR FANS

With his profile soaring, Jimmy is constantly recognised, but his friends say he hasn't changed. 'He's honestly interested and loves everyone and meets everyone, and smiles and takes every picture, and doesn't put his head down and pretend he's not out there, which a lot of my high-celebrity friends do,' says chef Mario Batali. But what does Jimmy think the drawback is to his busy schedule? 'It's hard to get to the movies,' he shrugs.

GETTING THE BIG NAMES

With a roster of star appearances that reads like the Oscars, Grammys and Golden Globes combined, what is it about Jimmy that keeps them coming? 'I'm still just a fan,' he admits. 'I love pop culture. But I think maybe I know a little bit more than the average host, because I've been on the other side of the couch, and I know what it's like.'

It's this love of the celebrities that has them coming back. 'We've set up an environment here where he has the trust of the guests, where they'll come in to do these crazy things,' The Tonight Show producer Gavin Purcell says.

JIMMY vs JIMMY

He may hold the number-one spot for late night talk shows, but Jimmy knows there is another Jimmy who will be itching to take his crown. 'Right now we're friends,' he says of fellow comedian Jimmy Kimmel. 'Right now we have a good rapport. I think it's going to be a friendly rivalry, but it's good to have someone to compete against because it makes you, it pushes you to do more stuff.'

BEING THE NICE GUY

They say nice guys finish last, but Jimmy is proving the theory wrong. He writes thank-you notes each morning to leave in dressing rooms, and is known for visiting each guest to say hello before the show starts. It's a trait he picked up from talk show royalty Jay Leno. Whenever Jimmy was a guest on Jay's show, he says, 'There'd always be a nice note from Jay like, "Thanks for being here, Jay" or like, "You're back for the third time, cool, Jay." It was really nice. It takes 10 minutes to write someone a thank-you note, but it means a lot,' he says.

I know what it's like to be on the other side of the couch

THE RISE AND RISE OF JIMMY

10 BABY NO.2

Jimmy added to his brood with adorable Frances in 2014, who was also born via surrogate.

FAMOUS FRIENDS

A dinner party at Jimmy's place would be amazing, with pals like JT, Jay Z, and Drew Barrymore.

FIRST CHILD

Daughter Winnie's arrival via surrogate in 2013 came as a complete surprise - the talk show host hadn't told a soul.

AWARDS HOST

His jokes hit the big stage when the comedian hosted the Emmy Awards in 2010.

LATE NIGHT WITH JIMMY FALLON

LATE NIGHT SHOW

6 Jimmy had his first taste of hosting a talk show when he took over Late Night in 2009.

TRUE LOVE

Put simply, Jimmy calls Nancy 'the coolest girl in the world' and he popped the question after just four months of dating! Aww...

FEVER PITCH

In 2004, Jimmy was cast as the leading man in sports flick Fever Pitch. His co-star Drew Barrymore played cupid and introduced him to her best friend and business partner, Nancy Juvonen.

MASTER OF IMPRESSIONS

The list of voices Jimmy can do is endless, but it is essential to watch him take off Jerry Seinfeld, Mick Jagger and Adam Sandler.

SATURDAY NIGHT LIVE AUDITION TAPE

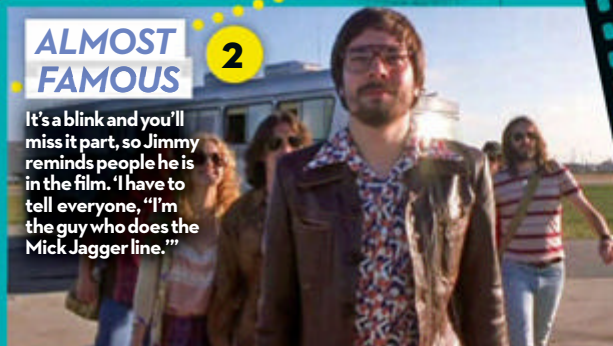

'I was so nervous,' he says of his audition. With the comedian admitting he ate a burger and a banana smoothie right before it.

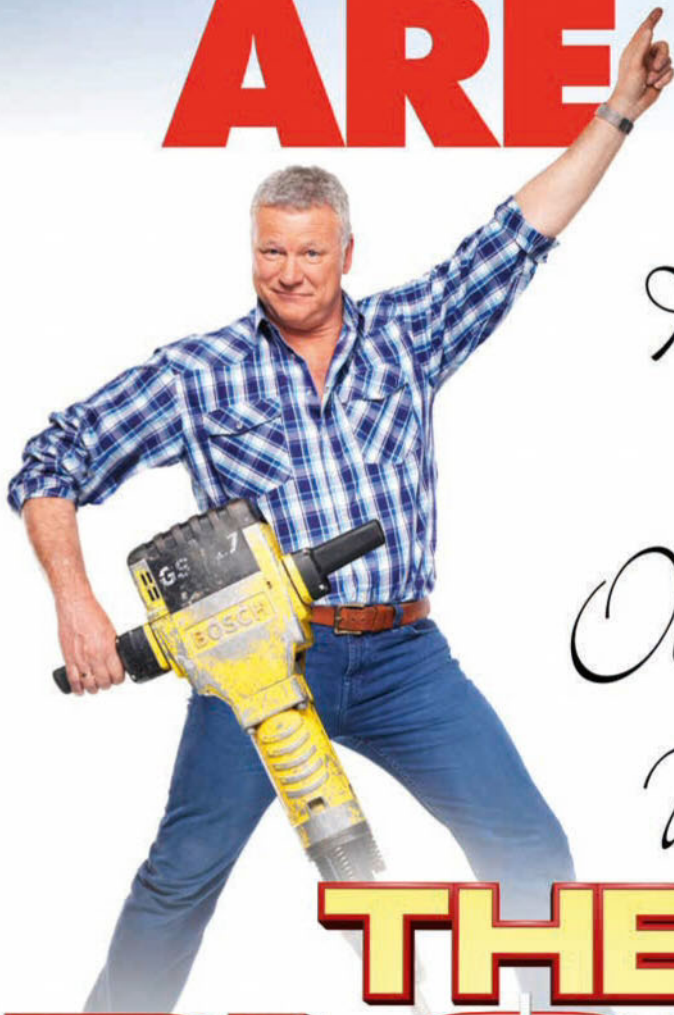

ALMOST FAMOUS

It's a blink and you'll miss it part, so Jimmy reminds people he is in the film. 'I have to tell everyone, "I'm the guy who does the Mick Jagger line."'

Margot Robbie's sleek, quiffed upstyle is an edgy twist on the classic bun, says Aleks

Abadia, founder and hair director at Esstudio Galleria (esstudio.com.au). Follow Aleks's steps, tips and tricks to try this look on your next night out.

STEP 1: Blowdry hair straight to achieve a smooth, sleek finish.
STEP 2: Create a prominent part from the end of each eyebrow back to your crown and section the top quiff off for later.
STEP 3: Apply hair gel around your hairline and part and comb back to achieve the wet look.
Top tip: If you find the gel is too hard or sticky, spray on some water and re-comb.
STEP 4: Pull back hair at the nape of your neck and tie with a hair elastic. Wrap the ponytail around three fingers in an upwards direction, securing flat against the head above the band with bobby pins.

STEP 5: Take the top section, tease slightly and push up to desired height of your quiff. Gel again and comb back, ensuring the part is revealed and the focal point. Finish with a spritz of strong-hold hairspray.

TIP

I use Jap pumpkin, but butternut works well, too. Keep the skin on – there's a truckload of goodness in it.

POACHED CHICKEN SALAD WITH MAPLE-ROASTED PUMPKIN, FETTA & PEPITAS

INGREDIENTS

- 2 skinless chicken breast fillets
- 1/2 tsp salt
- 1 garlic clove, smashed
- 1/2 tsp peppercorns
- 2 mega handfuls of rocket, washed and dried
- 100g (1/2 cup) goat's fetta, broken into chunks
- 1 tbsp maple syrup
- 3 tbsp extra-virgin olive oil

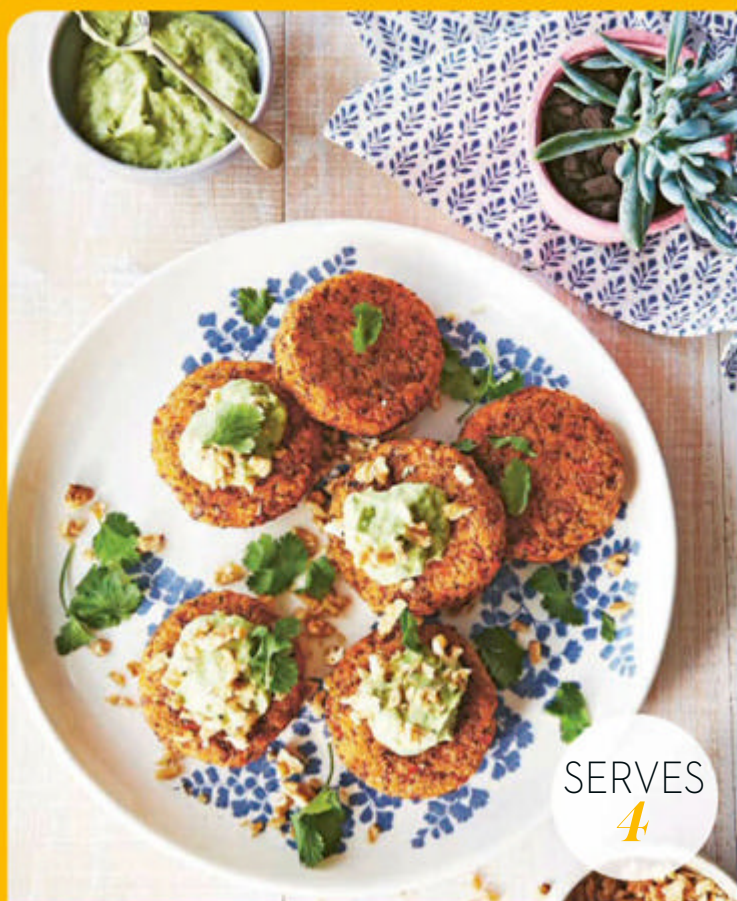

Maple-roasted pumpkin

- 300g (2 cups) roughly chopped pumpkin
- 2 tbsp coconut oil, melted
- 2 tbsp maple syrup
- 30g (1/4 cup) pepitas (pumpkin seeds)
- Salt flakes and freshly ground black pepper

METHOD

1 For the roasted pumpkin, preheat the oven to 180°C. Put the pumpkin chunks on a baking tray and drizzle over the melted coconut oil and maple syrup, sprinkle with the pepitas and season. Roast for 20 minutes, or until the pumpkin softens; the bigger the chunks, the longer it will take to cook. When it's cooked, leave it to cool. 2 Place the chicken breasts in a medium saucepan, sprinkle with salt, garlic and peppercorns, then pour in enough water to cover the chicken by about 3cm. Bring to the boil over a medium-high heat. You'll notice some white stuff come off the chicken – it's totally fine. You can scrape it off if you want to use this water as chicken stock later on, but if not just leave it in. 3 When the water comes to the boil, lower the heat and let it simmer for 10 minutes. You can tell the chicken's cooked by pulling the thickest bit apart – it should be white the whole way through. Another trick is to look at the juices – you don't want them to be pink, they should be clear. When the chicken is cooked, remove it from the poaching liquid and place it on a chopping board to cool, then shred it for a rustic feel. Set aside. 4 To assemble your salad, put your rocket, the roasted pumpkin, pepitas and crumbled fetta in a large bowl, season and toss it all about (gently!). Pop your shredded chicken on top and give it just a tiny drizzle of maple syrup and a nice glug of olive oil to finish.

SWEET POTATO & QUINOA PATTIES WITH LIME DRESSING

INGREDIENTS

- 2 sweet potatoes, skin on, washed and roughly chopped
- 2 tbsp extra-virgin olive oil
- 400g (2 cups) quinoa, rinsed
- 1/4 red onion, finely chopped
- 1 garlic clove, finely chopped
- 1 tsp ground cumin
- 1 fresh chilli, chopped
- Salt flakes and freshly ground black pepper
- 60g (1/2 cup) crushed walnuts, to serve

Green tahini and lime dressing

- 2 tbsp tahini
- 2 tbsp extra-virgin olive oil
- 1 avocado
- Juice and zest of 1 lime
- 1/2 bunch of coriander (save some leaves for serving)

METHOD

1 Preheat the oven to 180°C. Arrange your sweet potato pieces on a baking tray, drizzle with 1 tablespoon of the olive oil and bake for 20 minutes. 2 At the same time, put 750ml (3 cups) of water and the quinoa in a saucepan over a medium-high heat, bring to the boil, then simmer for 15 minutes, or until the quinoa is cooked and all the liquid is gone. 3 When the spuds are cooked, pop them into a large mixing bowl, add your cooked quinoa and use a fork to mash everything together. Add the onion, garlic, cumin and fresh chilli to the mix, and season with salt and pepper. 4 Shape the mixture into 8 large balls (you want these to look like little burger patties). 5 Place the patties on a baking tray, drizzle with the remaining olive oil and bake for 15 minutes, or until they're golden. 6 To make the dressing, put all the ingredients into a blender, give it a whizz and job done! 7 When your patties are cooked, dollop some dressing on each one, then garnish with coriander and crushed walnuts.

CRISPY SALMON & KALE MIX-UP WITH AVOCADO & DILL

INGREDIENTS

- 2 tbsp coconut oil
- 2 x 180g salmon fillets
- 1 bunch of kale, stalks removed and leaves chopped
- 1 big bunch of dill, roughly chopped (save some nice sprigs for serving)
- Salt flakes and freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tbsp extra-virgin olive oil, to serve

Mashed avocado

- 2 ripe avocados
- Juice and zest of 1 lime
- 1/4 bunch of dill, chopped
- Salt flakes and freshly ground black pepper
- 2 tbsp extra-virgin olive oil

METHOD

1 Put a frying pan on medium-high heat, melt the coconut oil, then pop your salmon fillets in skin-side down. Let the skin get really crispy – about 3 minutes – then flip them over and cook for another 2 minutes. This is a bit sacrilegious, but I get a knife and fork and pull the salmon apart in the pan, then leave it for about 2-3 minutes and wait for the oils to come out of the fish, so that each piece becomes super-crispy. 2 Add the kale and cook for 1-2 minutes, then add most of the dill, season with salt and pepper and toss together for another 30 seconds. 3 To make the mashed avo, put the avo in a bowl and mash with the back of a fork. Add the lime juice and zest along with the dill, salt and pepper to taste and a nice glug of olive oil, then mix it about. 4 Serve salmon with a generous glug of olive oil, mashed avo and a few sprigs of dill – enjoy!

THE ULTIMATE ROUND-UP OF WHAT'S HOT

THIS WEEK IN ENTERTAINMENT

They're two of MKR's fiercest – and fieriest – competitors, so the on-set tension between refined Melbourne contender Ash Pollard, 28, and exuberant WA foodie Kat Donald-Hill, 31, was bound to get intense. Neither have held back in the competition thus far, and now all niceties are out the window.

'What a wanker,' Kat says of Ash, who believes her rival is a bad sport. Ash says that with $250,000 on the line, there's a lot at stake, and Kat's name-calling proves she can't be trusted. 'You think someone's got your back in this comp – and then you discover that they don't,' shrugs Ash. 'From now on, it's every team for themselves.' Game on, ladies!

KAT

Kat, who's always forthcoming with her 'hope they fails', doesn't mince her words. 'Ash, I didn't really have a lot to do with, but Camilla was great,' she says.

The WA contender has no regrets about her strategic scoring. 'I liked Ash and Camilla's steak tartare (from their instant restaurant), but I had to score them really low to stay in the game,' says Kat.

WHO'S GOT GAME?

ASH

Ash disses Kat's inability to keep her cool. 'Being a strategic scorer makes you look like a sore loser,' says Ash. 'We saw that with Kat and Andre.' Ouch!

Friendly play is off the table for Ash and Camilla. 'We've bailed on the others,' admits Ash, after a 'sneaky' move leaves Kat fuming and the other teams with little doubt they are playing their own game.

DEMI HARMAN ON LEAVING
THE BAY AND FUTURE PLANS

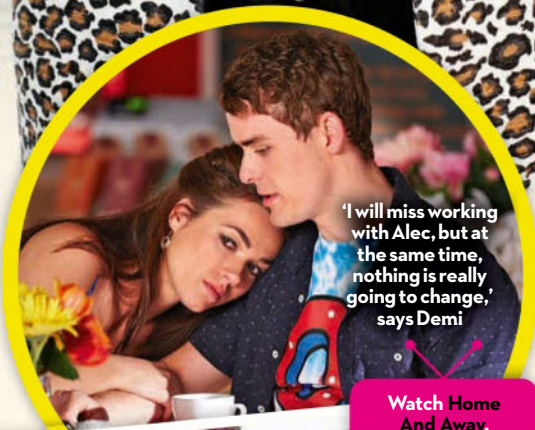

It's time to get the tissues out as we farewell Home and Away favourite Demi Harman from the Bay this week. The brunette beauty has played feisty Sasha for four years and admits she couldn't hold back the tears on her final day. 'I cried myself out, buckets and buckets,' she says. Not only was she saying goodbye to cast members who had become family, she was bidding farewell to working with her boyfriend, Alec Snow, 22, who plays her on-screen love interest, Matt. 'It was time to move on, I didn't want to be known as Sasha for the rest of my life,' she says. Fans can rest assured that the romance between Demi and Alec is still strong away from the cameras. But Demi admits she initially took some convincing. 'I was working against it and he was working for it,' she says. 'I never wanted to date anyone at work.'

But she's glad she took the leap. 'We're very happy, we're best friends, which is good. That's really important in any relationship,' she says.

Demi, 22, is busy with her hosting duties on Better Homes and Gardens and has just moved to Melbourne to play Riley Hart on Winners and Losers, but she hasn't ruled out pursuing her ultimate dream, which she revealed to OK! is to break the US market. 'I have a manager over there, so I audition for things every now and then; I just send over tapes,' she says.

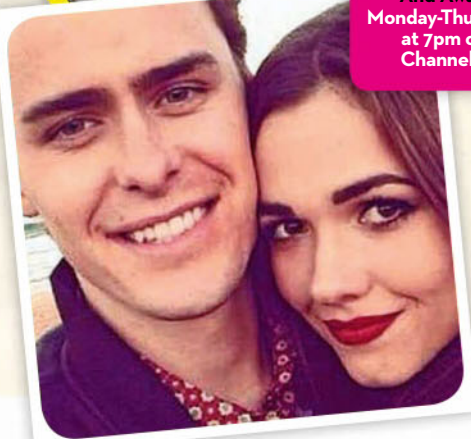

The actress is keen to do film work and joked about who she'd love to share a sneaky pash with on-screen. 'I like a bit of Harry Styles, but then I think maybe I want someone a bit older,' Demi laughs.

But fortunately, she isn't in any rush to jump on a plane anytime soon. 'I'm not ready to say goodbye to Australia quite yet.'

'I will miss working with Alec, but at the same time, nothing is really going to change,' says Demi

No, she's not leaving yet, but with Demi saying her farewells, it got Cassandra, 23, thinking about her own character Maddy's exit. 'She'll leave either heroically, jumping in front of someone in slow mo taking a bullet... or the opposite, with a family and finally having her life together,' she says.

Downton Abbey star Hugh Bonneville cooks Pad Thai to die for. Nuff said!

1 While the 22-year-old is copping some flak from brothers Kevin and Joe over his sexy new image, Nick still holds his head high. 'They've taken one or two shots,' he admits. 'It's our job to give each other crap.'

2 The Jealous singer is set to host the slimmest show on the box - Nickelodeon's 28th Kids' Choice Awards (Sunday, 11am and 6pm, on Nickelodeon). 'Bring on the slime!' he says.

3 He's sensitive when it comes to his girlfriend, Olivia Culpo, 22, who is the inspiration behind Jealous. 'We went out one night and this guy was looking at her for a little too long,' Nick recalls.

4 He hates working out! For his role on the TV show Kingdom (premieres April 7, 9.30pm, on FX), Nick had to bulk up to play MMA fighter Nate Kulina.

5 'I hate going to the gym,' he says. He's cheeky! He and pal Demi Lovato made a game of placing peoples' names into songs. 'Our goal was, "Let's find ways to slide these references in and only the person listening will know."' He finds things written about him hilarious. '[In one story] my brothers and I... had a mannequin that we travel with that we would dress up in clothes that we would wear the next day,' he laughs.

6 There's no stopping him! While he's 'made it' as a solo singer and has cracked the acting world, Nick has set his sights on Broadway. 'I'd love to write [a Broadway show], it's my next goal,' he reveals.

A CONFRONTATION LIKE NO OTHER SEES THE REAL HOUSEWIVES OF MELBOURNE STAR LEAVE THE SHOW – SHE'S FED UP WITH IT ALL!

'I was attacked,' explains Janet Roach of being cornered by her The Real Housewives of Melbourne co-star Gamble Breaux's sister, Tempest, in Sydney in a brutal verbal bashing. She tells OK! the confrontation was the pivotal moment when she decided she was done with the show.

'I actually quit,' she reveals. 'It's been the nastiest... the worst season to film and I wanted out.' Janet says the troubles between her and Gamble began after she told the newbie about rumours she'd heard that she was a stripper and escort, escalating to the point where she was concerned about her wellbeing.

'There were a couple of nights that I spent in the foetal position. I was in tears!' she says. 'I told the producers that I couldn't do this anymore. Emotionally it was tearing me apart.'

However, producers gave Janet her breathing space and coaxed her back. 'I'm back for now. As for season three, we'll just have to wait and see.'

JOSH & CHARLOTTE

NOT SO ANGELIC AFTER ALL

THEY WON'T MAKE IT TO AUCTION

Dea and Daz's apartment has site controllers worried. 'Their ceiling is still a concern. If they don't address the problem, they won't be able to sell the place,' says foreboy Dan.

Ignoring the rule stating they have to use their bedhead from the Jimmy Possum challenge, Sydney couple Josh and Charlotte decide to keep it 'in storage,' which has severe repercussions on room reveal day. 'We're over the halfway mark, we're pretty stressed at this point. We just had to stick to our guns and hope for the best,' says Josh, 25.

The pair have played by the rules so far, but their 'cheating move' has let everyone know they are willing to pull out the strategy card to win. 'Up until this point we'd been listening to tradies, but we wanted to be the ones calling the shots,' explains Josh.

'At the start we steered clear of the strategic game play, but by this stage we were full into it,' admits Charlotte, 25.

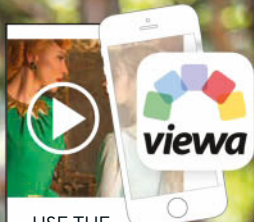

'We needed to be,' explains Josh. 'Have you seen Dea and Daz?'

MOVIES
WEEK

CINDERELLA

STARS Lily James, Cate Blanchett, Richard Madden, Helena Bonham Carter

RATED G ★★★★★

Cinderella is a beautifully created adaptation by director Kenneth Branagh of the beloved fairytale - from the lush countryside surrounding Ella's (Lily James) country house to the prince (Richard Madden), who brings new meaning to the word charming. The plot plays out pretty much how you'd expect - even Helena Bonham Carter doesn't get too carried away as the Fairy Godmother. Young girls will no doubt be enchanted from start to end - as will anyone who puts aside their grown-up cynicism to get swept up in the magic.

A LITTLE CHAOS

STARS Kate Winslet, Alan Rickman, Stanley Tucci, Jennifer Ehle, Helen McCrory, Matthias Schoenaerts

RATED M ★★★★★

This period drama, directed by leading man Alan Rickman, is a little like a 17th century episode of Backyard Blitz - where the backyard in question is the grounds of the Palace of Versailles and the surprised homeowner is King Louis XIV of France (Alan Rickman). Kate Winslet is as watchable as ever as gardener Sabine De Barra, who gets her hands dirty transforming a muddy field into a spectacular fountain.

MARK RUFFALO

MY ADHD KEEPS ME BUSY!

THE STAR OPENS UP ABOUT MAKING MOVIES WITH A BEHAVIOURAL DISORDER

Mark Ruffalo, 47, can pull off everything from a green Hulk-ing form to a tear-inducing dad in Infinitely Polar Bear (see review, left). The star has a secret to his unflinching ability to charm - he suffers from ADHD and is always up for something different, he tells OK!...

Do you find it easy to play such different characters?

I just think that because I am ADHD, I get very bored of the same thing, and I really like to challenge myself.

As an actor, do you ever draw comparisons in your roles?

When Cam would change, it would be extreme. The Hulk is extreme. They could both turn on a trigger.

What do your three kids think of you being a movie star?

My son's hair is dyed green. His clothes are green, his nickname is Green. I'd like to think it was because of me.

Will they ever give you and The Hulk your own movie?

I think they are, for the first time, entertaining the idea of it. When we did The Avengers it was basically 'No!', and now there is some consideration for it. But there's still nothing definitive.

STARS Mark Ruffalo, Zoe Saldana
RATED M ★★★★★

As father-of-two Cameron, a man who has bipolar disorder, Mark Ruffalo really packs an emotional punch. It's 1978 and Cam is fresh from suffering a breakdown. His wife, Maggie (Zoe Saldana), has left him to head off to business school, so he's in charge of their two daughters (standouts Imogene Wolodarsky and Ashley Aufderheide). With a promise that Maggie will return on weekends to help out, Cam does his best against all odds to keep his family functioning - with some funny and frightening hurdles in between. His efforts will leave you with a warm, fuzzy feeling.

GET HARD

STARS Will Ferrell, Kevin Hart, Craig T. Nelson, Alison Brie
RATED MA15+ ★★★★★

There are people who believe Will Ferrell is the funniest man alive, but it's actually Kevin Hart who provokes what laughs there are in this unbelievably stupid film. Hedge fund manager James King (Will Ferrell) has been sentenced to 10 years in a maximum security prison, so he hires his ambitious car wash owner pal Darnell Lewis (Kevin Hart) to prepare him for life behind bars. Lazy, ludicrous and lame - and that's just Will's performance.

GAGA
celebrates her 29th birthday
on March 28

ARIES

MAR 21 - APR 20

The Sun is sending its positive energy your way, making this the perfect time to grab opportunities and go after what you want. If for some reason you're not feeling the love, don't take it out on others. You determine your own destiny, no-one else.

This week's mantra:
Time to be positive.

TAURUS

APR 21 - MAY 21

Keep an eye on your emotions as things could be a bit up and down this week. People with dramatic tendencies should be given a wide berth - you'll be in a much better headspace, after all, to create positive outcomes, you need to surround yourself with positive people.

This week's mantra:
Confidence is key.

GEMINI

MAY 22 - JUN 21

Focus on what you want to achieve this week. Avoid anyone who likes to gossip - it has nothing to do with you and they need to sort things out between themselves. Stand firm, otherwise you could end up being bogged down by their negativity.

This week's mantra:
I won't be distracted.

CANCER

JUN 22 - JUL 23

The transformational energy embracing your life will have you questioning what you've done in the past. And this is a good thing - the best way to learn is by looking back. Meanwhile, clear the decks of people who are forever trying to tell you what to do.

This week's mantra:
I trust my instincts.

LEO

JUL 24 - AUG 23

Apply your Leo determination to create your desired outcomes. Everyone has an opinion, but you need to sift through those who can truly help you and those who haven't really got a clue. People do strange things when they suffer from an inferiority complex!

This week's mantra:
I know what I want.

VIRGO

AUG 24 - SEP 23

This week is a good one for taking your life in a new direction, so focus your energy on where you want to be personally and professionally. It's good to love what you do, but money is also important, so list your successes to remind yourself what you're capable of!

This week's mantra:
Time to get focused.

LIBRA

SEP 24 - OCT 23

The planets are pushing you to reassess all areas of your life this week. It's time to stop procrastinating and set some goals as to what you really want to achieve. This is your big-picture time - envision how you want your life to be, and start creating it.

This week's mantra:
There is no room for doubt.

SCORPIO

OCT 24 - NOV 22

You'll face a potential power struggle this week. It will be an ideal opportunity to turn your back on whatever or whoever is causing you grief. Don't give yourself a hard time; see it as a good opportunity to take a few deep breaths and gain some perspective.

This week's mantra:
Time to retreat.

SAGITTARIUS

NOV 23 - DEC 21

Many of you will be ready to pack your bags or quit your job, but don't let negative people affect you. Picture a wall of mirrors reflecting any negative energy back to where it came from. This is a great tool to use when you're feeling drained or dealing with a difficult person.

This week's mantra:
I protect myself.

CAPRICORN

DEC 22 - JAN 20

Some self-reflection will be hugely beneficial this week. Knowing what you stand for and why you act in certain ways is incredibly empowering. Don't take any negativity from anyone. If someone pushes your buttons, try to avoid lowering yourself to their level.

This week's mantra:
I watch my anger.

AQUARIUS

JAN 21 - FEB 19

It's time to break free from restrictive situations, whether that's a controlling friendship, a stressful workplace or a difficult colleague. Make sure you put yourself first from this point on - after all, trying to please others hasn't gotten you very far in the past.

This week's mantra:
I set my own agenda.

PISCES

FEB 20 - MAR 20

Why is it that some people always think they know what's best for you? You've become an open target for controlling, manipulative people, but this week is all about standing your ground and saying, 'Hell no!' After all, how are we meant to learn unless we make mistakes?

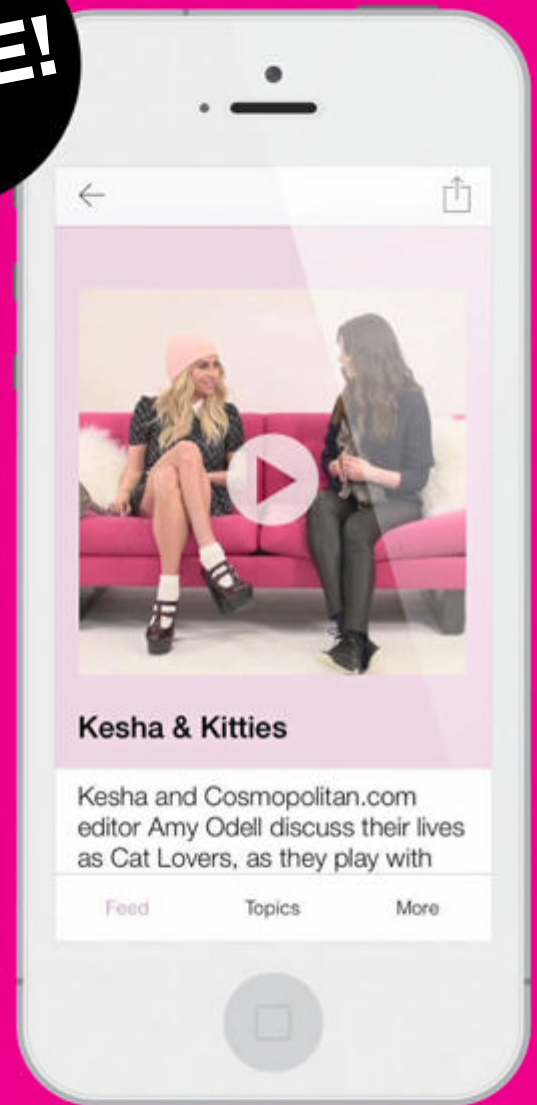

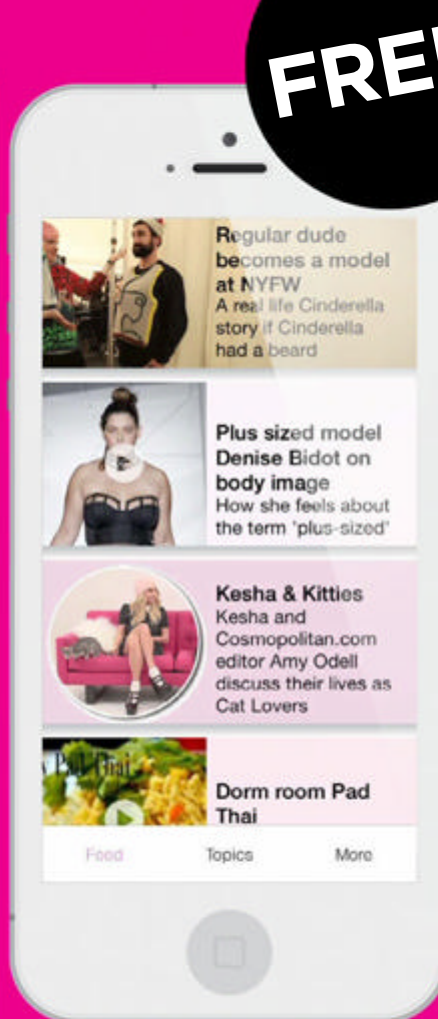

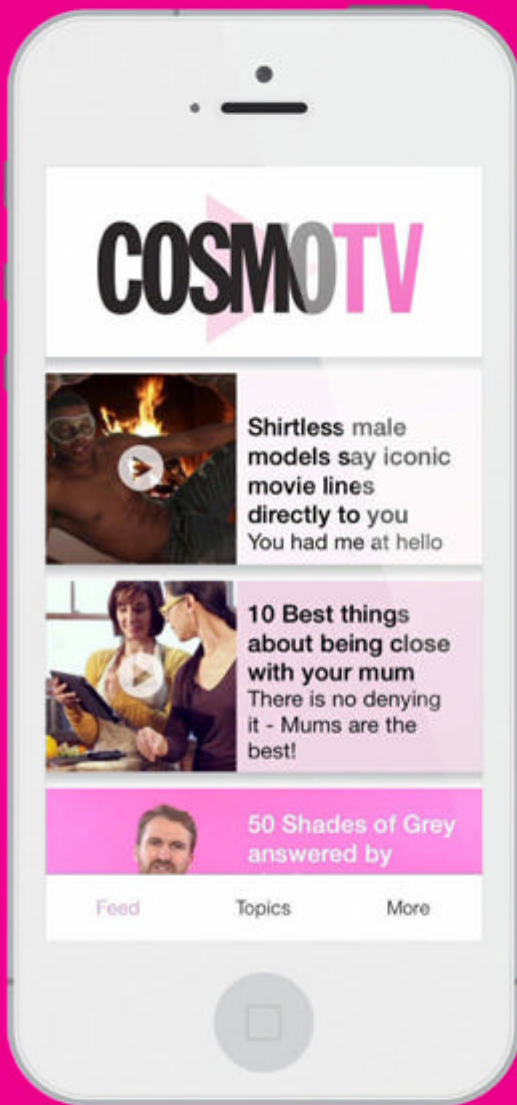

This week's mantra:
It's my life to live.

THE PAPARAZZI

'I think more people should go more crazy over me! I don't have a life outside of working and taking care of my children. When I arrived in LA I heard there was going to be paparazzi outside my building and I was like, "Yay, finally."'

This is what a 56-year-old ass looks like,' exclaims the original Material Girl. Madonna has always led the path in controversy, insisting, 'When I performed Like a Virgin on the MTV Awards and my dress went up and my ass was showing, it was considered a total scandal. Now, it's the average.' Her current goal is to break down 'ageism'. '[Women] can be as relevant in their fifties or their sixties as they were in their twenties!' Here, she also lets us in on her thoughts on the US president, paparazzi and that fall.

HER HOMETOWN

'I just didn't fit in [in Rochester, Michigan]. I felt like they were members of country clubs and they had manicures and wore nice clothes. I felt like a country bumpkin.'

THAT FALL

'The most embarrassing moment of my life was falling off the stage - let me rephrase that, being choked off the stage by two little Japanese girls - at the 2015 BRIT Awards. Extremely embarrassing!'

KIM KARDASHIAN

'The one thing I'd never be caught dead wearing is a fur bikini.'

PRESIDENT OBAMA

'When the heck am I going to meet him? He just needs to invite me to the White House already. He probably thinks I'm too shocking to be there. If I was a little bit more demure... or if I was just married to Jay Z.'

NO MOORE FINGER DANCING!

She may have won an Oscar for Still Alice but awards season wasn't all glitz and glamour for Julianne Moore. 'I had a dress on and I said to my manager, "When you see my back fat sticking out, tuck it back in... be a friend,"' she laughs. And as much as she enjoys frocking up, she has her limits. 'A guy asked me to lift up my skirt to show them my shoes,' she says. 'I said, "Let's keep some dignity!"' As for the E! mani cam, where celebs show off their manicures on a mini red carpet, 'I'm 54 years old... I can't make my fingers walk, it's humiliating!' Stay classy, Jules.

KARL STEEA-NO-DRINK

Karl's drunken behaviour prompted 'some serious concern about the ramifications for me at a professional level'

Karl Stefanovic's on-air drunkenness after the 2009 Logies continues to haunt him... six years later! 'It's really hard,' the Today host says. 'When I say to my 15-year-old son, "Don't go and get pissed," he's like, "Dad - where do you want to start on YouTube?"' While Karl reveals, 'Every time I go out now, everybody wants me to get drunk with them,' he admits he doesn't drink nearly as much as he used to: 'I'm a pain in the ass and just talk and talk and talk about myself.'

SJP'S HOLIDAY DIARY

'Spring Break,' said Sarah Jessica Parker as she fled the freezing Big Apple for some tropical sun. The 50-year-old actress has been posting snaps ever since, much to our envy!

Sarah Jessica boasts of 'progress' - just wait till she gets in the water!

The actress clocked this dancing dolphin 'With my own eyes!'

Even cooking was off the cards for SJP, who revealed hubby Matthew made his own birthday omelette

THE BOYZ

WILL FERRELL:
'EAT MY GOODIES!'

MEET LITTLE DEBBIE

A new-look Will Ferrell dropped by for a chat with Jimmy Fallon, donned in a plaid dress, curly wig and straw hat. 'I have to wear it because I'm the face of Little Debbie's snack cakes,' the actor joked, spruiking the cakes, brownies and cookies at every opportunity. This prompted Jimmy to ask why he wasn't talking about his latest movie, Get Hard. 'Let's be honest, Jim, I'm not the Hollywood hunk I once was,' Will sighed. 'This mug ain't making the moolah like it used to.'

'OH NO SHE DIDN'T!'

Check out these zingers from the RHOBH reunion

Kyle to Brandi: 'At least I don't walk around naked with a tampon string hanging out.'

Brandi to Kyle: 'Because you don't get your period anymore, bitch.'

Brandi: 'I don't throw wine glasses, I throw wine!' Lisa R: 'You throw wine? What's the f---ing difference?' Brandi: 'It's called assault and battery, bitch!'

Lisa R: 'Shut the f--- up, I'm so sick of you.' Kim: 'Oh - GO EAT!' Kim: 'I take more pride in my work than anyone here.' Andy Cohen: 'But you did do Diving with the Stars.'

HAPPINESS IS...

Actor Chris O'Dowd admits he got emotional the first time his wife, Dawn O'Porter, breastfed their son, Art. 'When our baby took to the boob for the first time - I had happy tears at him having his first feed, but also sad at the thought of how many more boobs he'll seek out before he's truly happy,' jokes Chris.

BRINGING NASTY BACK

Once Mandy Moore signed her first record contract at only 15, she began touring with *NYSNC. However, it wasn't all car rides and sing-alongs, especially with the star of the band, Justin Timberlake. 'He walked up and pointed at my feet and was like, "Girl, you got big feet for a girl,"' she recalls. 'I was mortified... I wanted to crawl into a hole. It really was a low blow.'

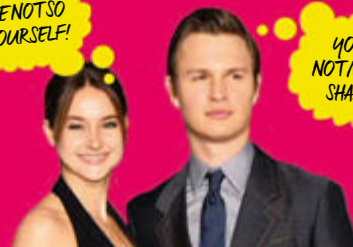

The OK! AWARDS

IRRATIONAL FEAR OF THE WEEK

'I don't like wet wood,' actress Liz Hurley admits after being asked if she has any phobias. 'The bottom of boats, posts that are half in the water. I can't open a cupboard door if there's a sink above it.'

YOU'RE NOT SO HOT YOURSELF!

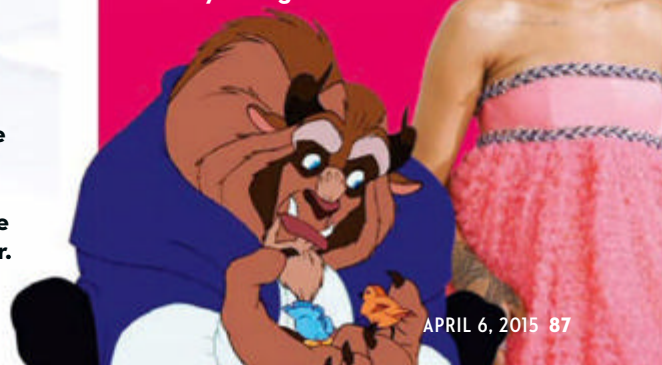

YOU ARE SO NOT MY TYPE, SHAILENE!

AWKS OF THE WEEK

Looks like Ansel Elgort really isn't into co-star Shailene Woodley. 'If a woman is really pretty, it's kind of hard to stay just friends,' he says. 'Me and Shailene have a really platonic relationship, I've never once wanted her sexually.'

TRACK RECORD OF THE WEEK

When asked what her favourite animated film was, Rihanna took a hilarious shot at her past beaus. 'Beauty and the Beast,' she quipped. 'I fell in love with the Beast. Pretty much my dating record so far.'

Mmm... WHATCHA SAY?

Jason Derulo is single and ready to mingle! 'I am dating,' he reveals. 'I want somebody that I can talk to and is kind of like me.' But don't expect to find him on Tinder, even though he's releasing his new song on the dating app. 'Maybe if they come up with a version of Tinder for celebrities, then I would do it.' We'd totally swipe right for Jason on Celeb Tinder.

A-MONTH MANSION

'[Sometimes] I have to shut everything off and just go into my home,' Beyoncé says. And that's exactly what we would do if we rented a mega mansion for a whopping $150K a month! Although, when you have a combined net worth of over $1 billion what's $150,000, right? The house is in the exclusive area of Holmby Hills, LA, and has seven bedrooms, nine bathrooms, a fitness centre, two libraries, theatre, pool and tennis court. The three-storey mansion also has an elevator so their three-year-old tot Blue Ivy can get around easily!

GEORGE & CINDY'S

Awkward encounter

Even though best friends share things, we're pretty sure that doesn't include wives. But Rande Gerber, husband of Cindy Crawford and bestie of George Clooney, says it very nearly happened! After a few drinks at Rande's place, George decided to stay the night. Cindy recalls, 'I woke up at midnight with the kids sandwiched on either side... and I snuck into the guest room. I saw Rande lying face down on the bed.' Rande continues, 'She got into bed. And started rubbing my back... only it wasn't me, it was George!' Sounds like an eventful night!
